"Well, well," said the absent-minded professor, as he stood knee-deep in the bath-tub, "what did I get in here for?" Our own Victorians are sometimes as bad as the professor, i.e., when they are absent-minded enough to call for a glass of ale at their bar or club, and not to specify "Allsopp's Ale." It is for them to decide whether they drink the best Ale on the market or an inferior brew. Wise ones remember to demand "Allsopp's." It is on draught at all leading hotels and cafes. If your dealer cannot supply you with a keg for home consumption, please remember to ask him to procure it for you from us. We import Allsopp's Burton-on-Trent XXXX, the best that's brewed, direct from the famous Brewery at Burton-on-Trent, England, and distribute it in casks, small and large.

MAINLAND TURNS CONSERVATIVE

Emphatic Victories Scored in Vancouver and New Westminster

PARTY IS ENTHUSIASTIC

Mr. Cowan Obtains Over 1,500 and Mr. Taylor Over 700
Majority

Vancouver, Oct. 26.—The enthusiasm over the great Cowan victory reached its height in the Conservative committee room, through which the victorious candidate was carried over the heads of his shouting supporters. From a table on a raised platform Mr. Cowan thanked the electors for his handsome majority, and added: "It has been a good fight and a clean fight. We have routed the enemy. There was never any campaign in which the success was so complete at all points. Yes, gentlemen, it was that flag and all that it represents—" "And Bowen Island," rang a voice. "Yes, the poor old World is right. It is back to Bowen Island for a rest. (Laughter and cheers.) But the honor and the credit for this great victory is yours."

A moment later he added: "I regret that one of my enemies used weapons that are debarred in civilized warfare. But he himself fell into the net that he laid for me." (Laughter.) Of Mr. Martin he said: "Let us give three cheers for Joe Martin. He is an able and a hard but a clean fighter." After tribute to his active supporters, chiefly Harry Watson, he was carried back over the heads of the great throng to the waiting auto, and with lighted brooms following, the procession rolled through the fog up Hastings and Granville streets.

Mr. McInnes did not take his defeat very good-naturedly. Addressing his supporters after his loss had been counted at his central committee rooms he declared that the city of Vancouver would rue its mistake in electing a Conservative. He said in part: "Vancouver, I am sorry to say, has done a serious damage to itself. That man who did not see how the country was going—that man, I say, will rue the 26th of October. Again, I declare that the citizens as a whole have been unfortunate in their action today. I don't mean this because they rejected me personally—this was not a question of personalities—but because Vancouver failed to realize the situation it faced. The Dominion government did more for British Columbia than any other province and more for Vancouver than any other city, and I felt that I was entitled to support."

"It is a sorrowful thing that the city did not in a masterly voice declare its support in a policy tending to its advancement."

"I wish to God the citizens of Vancouver had been true to themselves today."

Mr. McInnes concluded after thanking his supporters for their votes. The total votes of the four candidates are: Cowan, 4514; McInnes, 3011; Martin, 2092; Kingsley, 1135.

New Westminster, Oct. 26.—J. D. Taylor, the Conservative candidate, won a notable victory in New Westminster district today. The returns complete give Taylor, Conservative, 2081; Jardine, Liberal, 1379.

The Conservatives are naturally elated and celebrated their victory by a torchlight procession. The successful candidate and others addressed the crowd.

Veteran Missionary Dies.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 26.—Rev. Dr. Bingham, the veteran missionary, who underwent a surgical operation at Johns Hopkins hospital last week, died there yesterday. Dr. Bingham was born in Honolulu in 1831 to which place his parents had gone from America in 1820 as pioneer missionaries. In 1856 he went to the Gilbert Islands as a missionary. Dr. Bingham reduced the Gilbertese language to writing, and wrote a number of books in that tongue.

Swiss Elections

Berne, Switzerland, Oct. 26.—The election of members to the national council was held yesterday, and the result leaves the present political complexion of this body practically unchanged. The radical left wing retains a large majority. The Socialists' representation remains the same. The people have accepted a constitutional amendment giving the government increased authority and control in the matter of development of water power in Switzerland.

PLEADS INSANITY

Defence Entered By Captain Hains, Who Murdered Wm. E. Annis at New York

New York, Oct. 26.—Temporary insanity was the defence of Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., U.S.A., who killed William E. Annis at the Bayside yacht club landing last August.

In the supreme court at Flushing, L. I. today, Judge Garson overruled the defence entered by counsel for the defendant, Attorney Darlin, asked that the court fix a date for the trial. The judge Garson said he preferred to leave to the judge who would preside at the November term of court.

LOST IN MOUNTAINS

Search Made For Fred Kloeber, Whose Companion Was Found Dead

Tacoma, Oct. 26.—A special to the News from Green River hot springs says: A party of 25 experienced woodsmen headed by J. C. Kloeber left the hotel this morning at dawn to renew the search for Fred Kloeber. They will proceed to the spot where the body of Julius Kumble was found and take up the trail from there, dividing the party into an extended skirmish line, which is the only way to thoroughly cover the country. Weather conditions on the mountains are clear and favorable as they were yesterday.

Some persons believe that Fred Kloeber will be found alive. Others are less hopeful and fear he too has succumbed. No effort will be spared to continue the hunt until the fate of the missing man is determined. Those who hope for the best count on the fact that Mr. Kloeber was an experienced hunter and resourceful in taking care of himself in the woods. Besides this, he was strong and possessed of good staying qualities. Derront's bloodhounds from Spokane were expected to arrive at the hot springs at 11 o'clock this morning and will be taken out on the trail promptly.

Preparations were made to carry the body of Julius Kumble to the hotel, where the party is expected to arrive about 1 o'clock. It will be prepared for burial and await the arrival of his brother, who is now on his way from San Francisco. The dead man was a member of the Elks and Eagle lodges. The reason his body was not brought in yesterday was because it was several hours before a sufficient number of the searching party reached the spot where the body was found at the extreme summit of the Rooster Comb mountain, and about four miles north of the Green River hot springs hotel.

Revolutionists to be Shot.

El Paso, Texas, Oct. 26.—After a trial at Torreon, Mexico, Lugo and Nobledo, leaders of the Mexican revolutionists who railed to town of Viescas in Mexico last June, have been sentenced to be shot, and 12 accomplices sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary.

Owing to the shortage of power, the Colonist was compelled to go to press at 12.30 instead of 3 a.m. today. For this reason the election returns are somewhat abbreviated.

MANY POLITICIANS GO ON THE STUMP

Presidential Candidates and Helpers Swarm in Empire State

New York, Oct. 26.—With election day little more than a week away, the leaders of all the political parties of what is expected to be a sensational finish of the national political campaign. New York is the real battle ground, in the opinion of the campaign managers, and here today were gathered practically all the heavy artillery of all the parties. Wm. H. Taft and Wm. J. Bryan, who came from stumping yesterday, spent the night in this city and both were astir early today to begin a week of work which will tax their endurance to the utmost.

Mr. Bryan's schedule for the day providing speeches in half a dozen towns and a long address at the big mass meeting in Madison Square this evening. Mr. Taft had a midday engagement in New Haven, but he will return to New York this afternoon and will deliver several addresses before midnight. He will devote the entire week to New York.

In addition to Mr. Taft and Mr. Bryan, several hundred speakers will appeal to voters of all classes throughout the state today and for the remainder of the week. They will include candidates for governor, members of the cabinet, United States senators, members of congress and political spellbinders.

Vice-President-elect candidate Charles S. McNamara is also scheduled for a number of speeches in New York state during the week.

Of the other states, the greatest activity will be shown in Ohio and Indiana.

Vice-President Fairbanks and John W. Kern, the Democratic candidate for the vice-presidency, will be the leading speakers of the Republican and Democratic parties in Indiana. Both will have the support of well-known campaigners. In Ohio several members of President Roosevelt's cabinet will speak for Mr. Taft, and the strong campaign which has been in progress for several weeks will continue.

St. Lawrence Again Blocked.

Montreal, Oct. 26.—Fog and smoke have securely tied up navigation for the past four days, and there are now thirteen ocean liners waiting here for a clearance. Four of these are passenger vessels, and as a result 3,200 passengers are detained. The Virginian and the Maurena, which should have sailed last Thursday, are still here, and the outlook tonight does not promise such change for the better.

This is the third time within the past six weeks that ships have been held up by the smoke, and the loss to the steamship companies has mounted into the thousands of dollars.

DEATH OF CARDINAL

Member of Sacred College Passes Away in London—Former Archbishop of Toulouse

London, Oct. 26.—Cardinal Francis Deschamps, former archbishop of Toulouse, France, died in this city today. The cardinal was a delegate to the Eucharistic conference held in London last summer. He became ill here and underwent an operation shortly after his arrival. He was born in 1839 and created a cardinal in 1890. He was a member of the French Academy and had a seat also on the Tribunal Segnatura at Rome.

BARNARD WINS IN CLOSE FIGHT

Conservative Candidate Defeats Wm. Templeman By a Narrow Majority

THE VICTORY IS POPULAR

Hero of Hottest Contest in Dominion Accorded a Grand Ovation

Barnard 2,171
Templeman 2,166
Spoiled 75
Rejected 11

G. H. Barnard, K.C., was yesterday elected to represent Victoria in the Dominion House of Parliament, defeating Hon. William Templeman, minister of inland revenue and mines, by a total of 2,171 votes as opposed to 2,166 votes, a majority of five. There were 75 spoiled ballots and 11 rejected ballots. The intention of the majority of the ballots not included in the first figures were clearly in favor of Mr. Barnard. The official declaration by the returning officer will be made today.

The usually quiet thoroughfare of View street presented an unusually animated appearance. Thronged of earnest, and sometimes excited, men lined the street for several blocks, while motors, hacks and conveyances of all kinds were constantly driving up depositing their loads of voters at Institute hall.

Both the Conservative and Liberal workers were exceedingly confident of the result. The canvass books of either party showed large nominal majorities for its candidate, and the vote came out fairly well. The Conservative headquarters for the day were in the Macgregor block, opposite the Orient, while the Liberals had pitched a tent on a vacant lot next to the polling station. Crowds of men gathered on the sidewalk outside the committee rooms eagerly discussing the progress of the campaign. Both sides seemed satisfied that victory would eventually perch upon its banners although to the Liberal workers it was a matter of time before the cooler heads came back to the Colonist office, where anxious enquiries were being made as to how it came about that the final returns showed fewer votes cast than the figures previously given.

Uncertainty About Result

In the meantime reports came in that Mr. Templeman's organ had his picture in the window and was claim-to the Colonist office. The business office was jammed with people waiting to hear the news, while the street outside was crowded with Conservatives waiting for the bulletins which were immediately placed in the window. Many had been there for some time taking the returns as they came in from eastern constituencies.

The First Figures

Finally the telephone bell rang, and there was a stillness which could be felt. The first return showed a majority for Barnard, which was posted up amid cheers. Then the waiting recommenced, and for a while each message showed that Mr. Barnard was keeping a small lead. But when the votes had been about half counted a rush of Templeman ballots came in, and the cabinet minister shot ahead. This return was received with gloomy silence, but the next showed Mr. Barnard creeping up again, while the faces of his ardent supporters began to clear up a little. Soon the Conservative was announced to have caught and passed his opponent, and the tidings was received with another outburst of cheering.

About six o'clock a disquieting return was flashed over the wire, 2,202 for Mr. Barnard, and 2,250 for Mr. Templeman, with two boxes still to be counted. The fight seemed to be lost, as it was understood that practically all the ballots had been counted. But while there is life there is hope, and the crowd hopped doggedly hoping against belief that there was a mistake somewhere.

There was a long wait amid anxious silence. Then the bell rang again.

"Barnard, 2,180; Templeman, 2,064. Barnard elected!"

There must have been a mistake, but without stopping to enquire why or how, everybody went crazy and the long pent up enthusiasm found a vent at last. Hats went up in the air, strangers slapped one another on the backs and the whole multitude rushed out into the open air cheering till the street rang again, while a disconsolate crowd outside the Times office tried to look as if it liked it. For several minutes a pandemonium reigned, and then some of the cooler heads came back to the Colonist office, where anxious enquiries were being made as to how it came about that the final returns showed fewer votes cast than the figures previously given.

Uncertainty About Result

In the meantime reports came in that Mr. Templeman's organ had his picture in the window and was claim-

CHINESE PREPARING TO WELCOME FLEET

Revolutionary Plot and Boycott Plan Cause Some Uneasiness

Amoy, Oct. 26.—Order is rapidly being established at the reception grounds, where the recent typhoon wrought destruction. Bamboo structures have replaced the ruined buildings, and the original plans for the entertainment of the officers and men of the United States fleet are likely to be carried out finally.

All classes consider the visit of the Americans a highly important event. The schools will close for a week, and the custom houses, the consulates and the banks and business houses will close at 11 a.m. each day.

The revolutionist plot which was unearthed yesterday causes great anxiety the government officials fearing that its ramifications may be far-reaching. Its object was the assassination of high Chinese officials during the reception. Extraordinary precautions are being taken, and will be extended during the stay of the fleet here, and particularly during the official functions.

The attempt of the remnant of the anti-American boycott association to organize a demonstration has proved a complete failure, and any open attempt on the part of any person or organization to interfere with the festivities in honor of the American visitors will be met with severe punishment.

The general decoration plans are complete. Shiploads of potted plants, including a valuable collection of dwarf trees more than three hundred years old, have arrived from Canton. Lofty arches decorated with red, white, yellow and blue electric lights have been erected on the road, and at the entrance of the grounds and in the reception hall there are three arches, the centre one of which is brilliant with yellow decorations and the others with red, white and blue.

The Singapore temple, located near the grounds, which is over hundred years old will be thrown open to the country's guests. The fleet is due to arrive here at ten a.m. on Friday. Admiral Sah, of the Chinese navy, will call upon Admiral Emory, the commander of the ships that will visit Amoy, and present Prince Yui, chief of the Yui Yen, official representatives from Peking. Admiral Emory will return Admiral Sah's call and also pay his respects to the Peking representatives at the reception hall. The men will then be permitted to land. A series of entertainments will be given, and the general reception on the flagships, and on Monday the foreign residents will entertain the Americans. On Tuesday the committee's dinner to the officers and foreign residents will be held, while the chief feature of Wednesday will be the boat race.

MAJORITY FOR THE GOVERNMENT

Latest Returns Indicate That It Will Have About Forty

HEAVY REDUCTION SHOWN

Opposition Gains Ground in Nova Scotia and
Quebec

Montreal, Oct. 26.—Returns received up to midnight indicate the success of the Laurier government by about 40 majority, though there may be changes in some seats when the figures are all in. The Conservatives gained in Nova Scotia and Quebec and lost ground in Ontario, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. The causes of their disappointment in these provinces are variously conjectured. The standing in the different provinces appears to be:

	Con.	Lib.
P. E. Island	1	3
Nova Scotia	7	11
New Brunswick	3	10
Quebec	12	50
Ontario	45	40
Manitoba	8	2
Saskatchewan	3	7
Alberta	3	4
British Columbia	3	1
Totals	85	128

One seat is undecided and there are seven deferred elections. The government majority in the late House was 65.

CLAMOR FOR WAR

Servians of Portland Promise King
Peter Financial Assistance in Pending Struggle

Portland, Ore., Oct. 26.—At a mass meeting of Servians a message was drafted and cabled to King Peter, urging war to resist the annexation of the province of Bosnia and Herzegovina by Austro-Hungary, and promising both money and men in case of war. There were between 300 and 400 Servians at the meeting, and many are said to have come from far parts of the state, so deeply interested are they in the affairs of their fatherland. Patriotic addresses were delivered and enthusiasm expressed itself in vociferous applause and hurrahs.

The meeting was attended by both men and women, and the women were as patriotic as the men, and joined in the general acclamation for war on the part of King Peter.

The message also declared that there are at least 150,000 Servians in the United States, who would respond to the first call to arms.

Committees were appointed to canvass the various citizens of this and adjoining cities, to ascertain how many men could be enlisted in case war is declared.

ing 11 majority- for him. Then it transpired that in the hurry of the moment mistakes had been made in adding up the various books, and a corrected return was given, 2,180 for Mr. Barnard and 1,180 for his opponent. This was better than ever, but in order to make sure orders were telephoned for the Colonist representative to personally check the additions and send in the result. This was done, and the figures were found to be "Barnard 2,180 and Templeman 2,160." Then came in an independent confirmation of the correctness of the newspaperman's figures, while after a while the Times had to acknowledge that the Barnard was victorious by the slender majority.

The crowd, however, generally speaking, did not wait for the details. Barnard was elected, and that was all they cared about. The victory, not the figures, was what mattered, and so the glorious with delight and excitement, and through the streets, proclaiming the glad tidings. No longer was there any interest in the elections in other parts of Canada. That could come later. There was but one word and one sentiment, that of intense satisfaction at having won an unshin' hero.

The victory was celebrated with a torchlight procession, flaming brooms being used for torches as well as emblems of the crushing effect upon the party of the triumph of the Conservative organization. The Mayor paraded Government, Johnson and Yates streets, the enthusiastic crowds being led to the A.O.U.W. hall, where the chair was taken by W. B. Phillips, M.P.P., J. L. Beckwith, W. B. Blakemore, E. A. Lewis, C. M. Cookson, W. W. Robertson, Knox Courtney, W. A. Brown, Geo. Winketh, Leonard Tait, Richard W. Roper, J. H. Phillips, H. F. Langton, E. E. Leeson, Albert Carrs, J. McL. Mulhead, George Blake and J. T. Clute.

and throughout the proceedings were of the most lively and enthusiastic character. Many ladies were present and the ubiquitous small boy was no means absent.

Mr. Green.

Mr. R. F. Green: "We are, ladies and gentlemen, for the purpose of celebrating the greatest victory which has been won in the Dominion of Canada. (Cheers.) For when you consider the fact that we have a man here—a native son of Victoria—who has gone out against this great Goliath (great laughter) and that the gentleman who has represented the district for sometime and who has had a chance to meet him, and come down to defeat, he cannot be contradicted that we have won today the greatest victory that has occurred in the whole Dominion. (Applause.) We have had Mr. Templeman at his side (laughter), but he could not even save his skin in this boat. (Applause and laughter.)

"But we are here not only to celebrate this victory, but also to pay fitting tribute and due honor to the contributors who have labored for this cause. It is true that the majority is not large, but at the same time in such circumstances is just as effectual as 1,000. (Applause.)

I will only add, ladies and gentlemen, no matter what comes, we are hereafter going to be a good old city of Victoria. (Cheers) I will now call upon Mr. Barnard for a few words." (Applause.)

The Candidate.
Mr. Harry Barnard, who had a rounding reception, said:
"Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen,—Our worthy chairman has spoken of paying a tribute to me, but I have made a mistake, as the tribute which is due to me is paid not to me, but to yourselves, and I am here to-day to thank you all. (Applause.) For I do not at all consider that this fight through which you have come so successfully was fought on my behalf at all. It was rather, ladies and gentlemen, a fight for a great principle; a fight for British Columbia, in our great battle for our just rights from the rest of the world. (Cheers.) For you have today, through me, demonstrated that you do not care wholly irrespective of cabinet ministers or of cabinet pan, to let you rights being longer tripped upon without making any vigorous (Cheers). While I promise you, as as my poor ability enables me to do to labor incessantly and to stand for the interests of British Columbia in response to the just claims of anything else. (Cheers). Now ladies and gentlemen, I am pretty well talked out (hear, hear), as I have had of necessity, a great deal of talking to during the last three or four weeks both in the town and in the country street; but I cannot take my seat without most heartily thanking my committee and the press of the city the Colonist, and the Week, for their kindness in giving me the opportunity up on behalf of myself and of the Conservative party. (Cheers). I cannot particularize although our friends on the other side would apparently very much like that we should particularize, but I wish any third party do not believe that any candidate in this town, ever had such a committee to work in his interests or such an enthusiastic support as I have had in this elec-

"I also desire to thank those gentlemen, who came in from Vancouver and other points on the Island in order to help us in our fight for our rights, and as I feel that they came here at a sacrifice of themselves, and that their only object was to secure a good old party on top again. (Cheers).

"Tonight is the first night upon which the Conservative party has had an opportunity in federal elections to jubilate in this city for some time, and I feel that you should join with me in feeling very jubilant over this opportunity, for although this word is not precisely grammatical it expresses exactly what I mean. (Applause and laughter). I have further, and most particularly, to thank Mr. Hendry Price, the splendid secretary of the Association, for his share in the identifiable work that he has done, as well as one other gentleman, my friend Mr. J. L. Beekwith, who has on this occasion proved himself to be a friend indeed, and a loyal party man. I have also to thank Mr. Drury, of whom you have heard, for the wise man of the Liberal party."

Mr. Barnard—"Well, he is certainly not quite as wise as he was." (Laughter).

Mr. Barnard—"Did you say, Lelsier, or wiser?" (Great laughter).

"Simon? or wiser. (Laughter.) In any event he came to me about two o'clock and said, 'I have been licked, I have you licked,' to which I replied, 'Well, if we are, we can stand it.' And then he added: 'I have been beaten, and I have been elected, and I do not intend to go to jail for the sake of my contest I went over and shook hands with my opponents and I hope that you will come and shake hands with Mr. Templeman, when you have the opportunity.'"

"Well, ladies and gentlemen, it might look as if I were rubbing it in and if I were to go over and shake hands with him, while certainly he has not come to shake hands with me. (Hear, hear.)

"Mr. Murray also informed me that a great many Conservatives have voted against us. Well I do not know about that, although I do not think that this is correct, but I do however know this, that I do not think any of his Liberal friends who have had any influence with the government at Ottawa have at this election voted our way. (Applause.)

"I need hardly say, ladies and gentlemen, that I am a very proud man to-night. (Applause.) I am a native of this town and as I have served its citizens in different capacities in a way, it gives me especial satisfaction to now place the seal of your approval upon my efforts. I am in the mayor's chair, and whether or not I ever again seek your suffrages I do not think that my Liberal friends will ever again refer to the secret agreement between the two issues of the Liberal and Conservative parties, but by the result of this election down and out for ever. (Cheers.)

"In conclusion I have only to thank you all once more as well as to congratulate you upon your happy return to your allegiance to the grand old Conservative party, which is the best and truest to the interests of both Canada as a whole and of British Columbia as a province." (Cheering.)

Scene at Polling Booth

The scene inside Institute hall last night when the ballots were counted was an exciting one. The count was the first since that election held in Victoria. With nearly every vote counted for Barnard, the winning conservative candidate, one was counted for his opponent, Hon. William Templeman, the defeated minister. Box after box was opened and showed a small margin in favor of one candidate, the next with a slim majority in favor of the other. There were twenty-four boxes spread about the sides and upper end of the hall, each with deputy election officers and the scrutineers sitting at a table, and as the count progressed the agents and friends of the candidates watched excitedly. It was a neck and neck

"Barnard wins," whispered a Conservative, as the mount neared the end.

Made Out Certificates

The returning officers each made out their certificates. These were placed and signed, the ballots were put back in the boxes, the spoiled and rejected ballots placed in envelopes, and these were also placed in boxes, which were sealed, before being given over to the returning officer.

There were in all 75 spoiled ballots and 18 that were rejected. One box was marked with the letter "A", and several had five. The ballots were spoiled in various ways. The man who marks his ballot: "I am a Socialist," was again in evidence. There were several marked in this way. One or two marked crosses opposite the names of each candidate. One wrote on his ballot: "Not for Templeman; we don't want the Japs."

The total vote cast was 4430 votes, of which 2171 were for Barnard and 2166 for Templeman. The others were spoiled or rejected. When the boxes had been given over to the custody of Returning Officer Hicks they were

NO LIGHT OR POWER IN EARLY MORNING

Will Close Down at One O'clock Throughout the Business Section

The situation in regard to the supply of electric light and power to Victoria was not materially changed yesterday. A small steam auxiliary plant at the local station of the B. C. Electric Railway company was put under operation and was able to generate sufficient for the maintenance of the needs of the business section up to 1 o'clock. At that hour, and probably at the same time every night for a few days, it will be necessary, according to the management, to discontinue the service in the down town district.

It is expected, however, that in about a week at the outside the present serious inconvenience will be to some extent, at least, overcome. It is explained that the Esquimalt Water Works company is engaged in the construction of a ditch which will bring water from another source, thus augmenting the small quantity available at the reservoir and allowing the use of some water. As the arrangements are being made for the use of a dynamo now at Vancouver, which will be run by the steam plant at Sayward's mill at night, it being understood that the management of the latter concern have come to such an understanding with the tramway company officials. Mr. Goward is convinced that, when it is possible to utilize these expedients, much of the present unpleasantness will be set aside and the system operated with comparatively satisfaction until the advent of the fall rains.

SHORT SESSION FOR THE CITY COUNCIL

Election Excitement Induces Council to Abbreviate Its Sitting Last Night

The desire of the civic fathers to get the latest returns on the elections resulted in an abbreviated meeting of the city council last night. Little work was done other than routine and that was quickly got through with.

The tenders for the 3,500 water meters for the waterworks system were received and opened. The prices tendered showed a wide range. The tenders were referred to the water commissioner and the city purchasing agent to report to the streets, bridges and sewer committee. The tenders submitted are for 3,400 five-eighths; twenty, one inch, fifteen one and one-half inch; ten, two inch; three three inch and two four inch meters, the prices for which are submitted as follows:

Glenford & Kennedy, $75,371; John McDougall & Co., $32,615 and two alternative bids of $30,137 and $33,185; J. A. Johnson, $38,518.30; Walter Fraser & Co., for the Union Water Meter company, $30,041; Hinton Electric company, per J. E. McIldeeny, $20,632.79; Baltimore Meter company, $30,076; Dyer, Field & Co., $30,990; Drummond, McCall & Co., $30,947.19. The Thompson Meter company, of Brooklyn, N. Y., asked for an extension of time for tendering of two weeks but the request was not granted.

Police Uniforms.
Tenders for twenty-six pairs of trousers and seven winter overcoats for the police force were received from C. E. Thomas and D. F. Sprinkling. They were referred to the police commission, the chief of police and the city purchasing agent to report.

In connection with the tenders for the high pressure pumps recently submitted to the council and concerning which the Victoria Machinery Depot has made a protest on the ground that the city electrician, one of the committee to examine and report on the tender should not be allowed to do so, or at least that the council should not award the contract before it has given the company an opportunity of bringing in an independent engineer to pass upon the merits of the tenders, or to furnish a board. Another communication was read last night from the same company. It states that in case the city prefers to bring in the independent engineer in preference to accepting the other offer of the company to put up a bond for the faithful performance of the contract and secure the city against loss that it will be willing to furnish another style of pump without any additional cost to the city in the installation thereof.

Mayor Hall was opposed to original tender being supplemented as, if the company were allowed to do so in this case, every other tender would be ordered to do so, while Alderman Henderson suggested that the communication be referred to the fire wardens who are still considering the original tenders. It was finally decided to file the communication and the original tenders will be considered.

A number of property owners in the vicinity of the saw mills presented a petition asking that the salt water high pressure system be extended in that section from the intended terminus on Government street at Herd street to either Orchard street or Bay street, as should a fire occur in any of the mills there would probably be serious damage to surrounding property unless there were adequate means at hand for fighting the fire.

Alderman Norman urged that the request be granted and suggested that if the work of extending the system of mains this year could not be done that this council might recommend to the incoming council to appropriate sufficient out of the general revenue next year to permit of the work being done.

Alderman McKewen stated that with the increase in the fire brigade and the fresh water system and the recent installation of the B. C. Electric company's salt water plant there should be ample fire protection, and Mayor Hall pointed out that the bylaw passed in the spring to raise money for the salt water high pressure system must be devoted to the specific purpose as set forth in the plan as outlined in the measure and which does not provide for any extensions.

The city solicitor recommended that when the city accepts the lease for the water front lot at the foot of Herd street, the department of Marine and Fisheries should be requested to make a perpetual grant of the site to the city. A resolution to this effect was passed.

Garbage Furnace Ready.
The committee on garbage and scavenging, which is composed of Ald. Hall, Gleason and Henderson, recommended that as the furnace on Telegraph street is now completed and operating the burning of combustible refuse such as mattresses, old lumber, trees and material of a size beyond the capacity of the furnace, and now and hitherto destroyed by fire on Cook street, has now become, owing to the building up in that locality, dangerous and a nuisance and should be discontinued and no further burning be permitted in that locality from and after November 1. A suitable dumping ground or grounds should be selected for the extra size combustible refuse and for filling in. The construction of a new wharf at the foot of Telegraph street on city property is recommended as well as the construction of two adequate scows. The services of a tug boat by contract is, the committee suggests, preferable to the purchase of a tug. It will be necessary in the near future to bring before the ratepayers a bylaw to enable the corporation to absorb and control the scavenger hauling, the money required for construction of the wharf and scows, about $10,000 or $12,000, the committee recommends to be taken out of the general revenue, this sum to be appropriated by the incoming council for the year 1939.

Relative to the above Alderman Henderson stated that at present the city is charging a fee for each load of garbage delivered at the wharf but many are taking the refuse to Cook street and thus escaping paying any fee. This should be stopped but a large amount of the refuse is combustible and could be conveniently used for dumping in some locality where filling in is needed. If the committee's report is adopted it will mean that the present scheme of disposing of the garbage will be continued and an incinerator for which a bylaw to raise the required money, was passed in the spring, need not be taken advantage of. The report was adopted. The final reconsideration and passing of the Belleville street pavement was given. It was decided to extend the street work on Cook street between Pandora avenue and Pakington street by continuing the boulevard along the south side of the street on to Hilda street.

The sum of $200 will be offered to Mrs. McQuade, Douglas street, whose premises abutt upon the street line where it is proposed to straighten the lines and put in local improvements.

New Hats Pins.

Hatpins of silver, ivory, bronze and lacquer show beautiful specimens of Japanese handiwork in oval, square, ball, rod and mushroom shapes as well as in reproductions of animals, flowers and birds in their natural colors and brightened with tiny "jewels." Every stone that is termed precious is simulated in the gold and silver frame cabochon pins, which reproduce openwork, filigree, Etruscan, Dutch, Egyptian and Greek designs, and among the collections of hinged ornate disks are many having a central gem surrounded by a ring of smaller kindred stones sunken deeply into gold, silver or copper. From each side of such settings hang clusters of short metal chains terminating with tiny rhinestones, sapphires or pear shaped fresh water pearls. Other pendant pins are evolved wholly from antique silver or green or gold, while the Directorate models imported from Paris have a fringe of chain metal depending from settings carrying matrix turquoise, Australian green stone, coral, surrounded by brilliant emeralds, and seed pearls. These are usually of oblong shape rather than round like the flat cabochons showing Moorish and Turkish enamelling or the filigree mushrooms set with pink and white corals, amethysts and amber.

Tiger eye cabochon pins are one of the grotesque fancies of the moment, but they are scarcely less bizarre than are the Damascus pins of oxidized steel having portions of their surface ornamented with inlaid gold and set with commingling var-colored stones. Directly contrary to these are the huge circles of turquoise, coral and jade, picked out with innumerable tiny brilliants, which form flowers, wreaths, conventional figures and initials.

Tortoiseshell is used principally as a mounting for stones and compositions resembling cats' eyes and amber which are used as centre ornaments surrounded with brilliants. Stained horn is similarly treated, but most effective of all pins showing tones of brown or yellow are those of bronzed metal having amber and topaz centres. Zodiac hatpins of gold, silver, gun, copper and the various enamelled and colored metals are chiefly in diamond and square shapes. Usually their smooth, flat surfaces are outlined with an enamel etching of the Greek or Moorish order and their centres invariably filled with a letter or a symbol typifying the birth month. Of the same character are the pins carrying the crest of a nation, a state or a family reproduced in high colors.

Among the most artistic as well as perishable hatpins are those of porcelain or filled glass, which must be carefully handled at all times, as the china cracks readily and the glass will crush if grasped too tightly. They are painted after Watteau, in imitation of Dresden ware, and in Pompadour colorings intermingled with gold and silver.

Autumn Leaves.

Home have they carried, with song, leaving the broad fields bare,
Under the round red moon, the last rich golden sheaves;
And I hear in the woodlands dim, sad Autumn's funeral hymn—
The dirge of the falling leaves.
Alas! so brief the morn since summer with laughter played
Where the sea-seeking stream her music mystic weaves.
Now she lies still as the dead, deep in her forest bed,
Shrouded in shuddering leaves.
But the old quiet nurse to whom all sad things softly are told
Winter, the wan one, folds her close to her breast, and grieves;
Till the promise that does not die, with a new joy and cry,
Stirs in the quivering leaves.
Dark is my own heart here, as I list to the winds that weep;
But I think of you to be my lingering soul receiver,
For I know Love's eyes will wake, and Love's sweet dawn shall break
Out of life's fallen leaves.

When Dean Swift Retaliated.
Once during a journey on foot Dean Swift stopped at a roadside tavern, or, at least, to obtain some refreshment. The landlady was so busy chatting with and serving several wagoners, whom she evidently thought superior persons to the dusty and road-stained Dean, that she obliged him to wait her pleasure to serve him. While waiting Dean sat at the front of the house, and observed that it was called "The Three Crosses"—owing to the fact that it was at the three interesting roads leading to various cities—he took from his pocket a diamond and cut on each pane of glass in the best room in the house the following:—"To the landlord: There hang three crosses at thy door. Hang up thy wife, and she'll make four."

THE RESULT IN THE CITY

After a campaign, which towards its close, was hotly contested, Mr. Barnard has carried Victoria. Whatever may be the announcement which the Returning Officer may make today, there is no doubt whatever that Mr. Barnard is the choice of this constituency, and we fully expect that Mr. Hicks will so declare.

The significance of a change from a majority of nearly seven hundred for Mr. Templeman two years and six months ago to a minority, when running in opposition to a candidate, whose aspirations he professed to treat with indifference and who his newspaper said would lose his deposit, is very great and must not be misunderstood. We have no doubt in our own mind as to the reason of it. The record of the Laurier government had something to do with it; the purely local and provincial questions, upon which Mr. Templeman conspicuously failed to meet the expectation of his constituents had some influence in bringing about the result; but the principal reason is to be found in the determination of a majority of the voters of Victoria to place themselves on record as opposed to Oriental immigration. This question towards the close of the campaign overshadowed all others, and it is upon it that the voice of this constituency has been pronounced. Whether or not by some ingenuity of construction Mr. Barnard's victory may be snatched from him, all Canada knows this morning that notwithstanding the claims made on behalf of the Liberal government in regard to Japanese exclusion, the people of this city are not satisfied. In view of the fact that Mr. Templeman had all the prestige attaching to a seat in the Cabinet and had all the strength that patronage could give him, his defeat upon such an issue is a very notable thing.

The campaign has on the whole not been a bitter one. Our evening contemporary was unduly personal, and in some of his speeches Mr. Templeman was unduly abusive, but we have long since learned to expect too much, and we bear no hard feelings against those with whom we have been contending.

Mr. Barnard made an excellent candidate. He worked with a vigor that was admirable and treated friend and opponent alike with consideration. He is to be greatly congratulated upon his success. The men who gave such earnest and willing service on his behalf are entitled to the thanks of the Conservative party.

STEAMSHIPS ON THE PACIFIC

The announcement by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy that we may be prepared to welcome the Empress of Britain and Empress of Ireland in our ports is of very great interest. It was undoubtedly the most significant statement made by the President of the Canadian Pacific during his visit to this city. We were all prepared to be told that the company would build such extensions of its line as business warrants from time to time, and to enlarge the hotel at Victoria, if it is found advisable. These are routine matters of the larger kind. We had been told some time ago that it was the intention of the company to bring the Atlantic Empresses to this coast, but nothing has been said on the subject lately and the withdrawal of trans-Pacific steamships by the United States railways, and the growing magnitude of Japan's share of the carrying trade had led some people to think that the semi-official statements made on the subject some months ago were at least premature. We now have the positive statement of the President of the railway company that these new, large and fast vessels are coming. This means that they will be replaced on the Atlantic by newer, larger and faster steamships. The company has issued $50,000,000 of new stock and we have the President's word that this is very largely to be used in improvements to the present service, and possibly we are not far astray if we conclude that by the building of new ships for the Atlantic service, the general improvement now in progress of the main line and the placing of the two ships above mentioned on the Pacific indicate a determination upon the part of the Canadian Pacific to establish a fast line between Europe and the Orient. The prominence, which the demand for an All-Red route has assumed, would of itself be an incentive to the company to occupy the field before any rival project can take shape.

Everything bearing upon rapid transportation across the Pacific has a special interest to the people of Victoria. There is no doubt that the Grand Trunk Pacific by means of its remarkably low gradients and its shorter ocean distance to Oriental ports, will be a very formidable competitor to any line of steamships terminating at Vancouver. We may rely upon it that the Canadian Pacific will not remain under any handicap in this respect that can possibly be avoided. Hence there is substantial ground for the expectation that the advantages of the Vancouver Island ports will not remain unutilized. In the long run geographical factors will tell. Witness the remarkable manner in which Montreal is capturing the grain trade from New York. As waters seeks the lowest level, so trade follows the line of least resistance, and if we are not all deceived the least resistance to the carriage of travel and commerce to and from the Orient will be encountered by a line of steamships from some port on Vancouver Island. This port may not be Victoria or Esquimalt. We think that it will be and that these ports are, all things considered, the most advantageously situated. But to whatever point on the Island trans-Pacific steamships may come, we will certainly witness in consequence a period of remarkable development. We shall not press the discussion of this matter any further this morning. These observations were called out by the statement of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, for his words were of great interest and we think we have not been illogical in the deduction drawn from them.

THE GENERAL RESULT

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been returned to power with a large majority. Although we had hoped for a different result, and although the indications seemed favorable to Conservative success, we cannot say that we are greatly surprised, excepting as to the result in Ontario. Throughout the campaign the Colonist was very careful to avoid any forecasts of our own of the way public opinion was setting in the East. We contented ourselves with giving the views of others, who seemed to be in a position to judge. We were never satisfied with the manner in which the Conservative campaign was conducted in the Eastern provinces, and declined to follow it in Victoria. Hence the Conservatives of this city have had the satisfaction of defeating the only Cabinet Minister who failed of election yesterday.

It is not our intention this morning to make any general observations as to the effect of the late campaign upon Canadian affairs. That may properly form a subject of treatment at an early day. For the present we will only express the hope that in the new lease of power that has been granted to him, Sir Wilfrid Laurier will show that he deserves this renewed expression of confidence.

THE STREETS.

In no spirit of fault-finding, but simply to impress upon them the necessity of action, we direct the attention of the Mayor and Aldermen to the really inexcusable condition of some of the principal streets. We say inexcusable because it seems as if there is one remedy, which would go far to making them more passable. Better drainage is needed. We do not mean a better system of surface drains, but a general cleaning out of gutters, and where there are no gutters to carry away the surface water, the digging away of the obstacles to its free course. A few days ago in speaking of the great puddles that collect in many places, mention was made of one on the corner of Government street and the Gorge Road. Next day some one went there and dug a little drain. It was about five minutes' work, but it provided a remedy. To be sure it simply drained the water off to another place, where it is quite as much in the way of pedestrians but it illustrates how a little work can do something in the way of street improvement.

A very great deal of excellent work has been done this summer. There may be a difference of opinion as to the necessity of some of it just at present, but we are not disposed to be critical on such points, for we know that there may be reasons for municipal work, which are not apparent to casual observers. Now let the Aldermanic Board look after the minor matters of the kind just mentioned. A little money, judiciously expended, will do a great deal of good, and certainly make our streets look very much better.

The problem presented by the city streets is a very formidable one and apparently no person seems competent to grapple with it. The present reference is not so much to the business streets as to those in other parts of the city. Yet the soil of Victoria is favorable to street making in residential sections. What seems to be the source of a great deal of trouble is the very inadequate means provided for the drainage of the surface water. While the city is fairly level, there is hardly a place in it where there is not sufficient incline in one direction or another to carry off rain as rapidly as it falls, but these natural drainage facilities are choked up with grass, leaves, earth and other things, so that the water lies where it falls or in the pools into which it flows from the higher inequalities of the streets. What seems to be needed is a chance for the water to run off, and it would cost very little to provide this. Let any one take a walk around the city during or after a rain that is at all heavy and he will see what we mean. There are places where a man working half a day could prevent the accumulation of water, and we are unable to understand why that sort of work is not done. Take Government street between Johnson and Fisguard, for example. During the last week or two great pools have been allowed to remain there and the carriage way has been exceedingly muddy. It is true that excavations were in progress for the laying of the salt water mains, but really this was no excuse for allowing these great pools to collect. In one of them some person, with a sense of humor, posted a notice to the effect that persons desiring fishing rights should apply to the City Engineer. The water ought not to have been allowed to accumulate there, even though work was in progress on the opposite side of the street.

The truth of the matter is that our streets are not looked after in what may be called a metropolitan manner. The practices in force here are those in conformity with ideas prevalent in some old-fashioned villages, where the people look upon a certain amount of mud and a certain number of puddles as necessary evils. Municipal untidiness is the rule in Victoria and there is no use in attempting to conceal it.

THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

After an exceptionally dull period, public interest in the United States seems at last aroused in the Presidential campaign. The most notable development is the degree of confidence expressed by Mr. Bryan and his supporters. They claim to be certain of success. A week ago the New York Herald, in its analysis of the situation, reached the conclusion that Mr. Taft would be elected unless there is a landslide to Mr. Bryan. The latter's managers claim that the landslide has begun.

Mr. Taft is undoubtedly under a heavy handicap. The cartoons in the newspapers, even among those friendly to him, represent him as very much of a shadow of Roosevelt. Now, much as the people of the United States admire the President, they like a candidate with a personality of his own, and this Mr. Bryan unquestionably has. He is not dominated by his own party. He is the head—he is, in fact, the Democratic party. He has taken into his camp the prominent men one after another, and he unquestionably has his party consolidated as it never has been since 1896. If he is defeated it will not be because of lack of unity among the people who have been looked upon as representative Democrats.

We incline to the opinion that Mr. Taft will be successful. There seem to be too many factors in his favor for any reasonable certainty being felt that they can be overcome by any possible landslide. But the extraordinary lack of enthusiasm among those supporting him is something that may lead to his defeat. So far as the world at large is concerned, it will probably make no material difference which of them is chosen. No one man, at least no man now in public life in that country, can impose his views upon eighty millions of people, so as to bring about any changes of a revolutionary character. At one time it looked as if Mr. Roosevelt might do so; but the task was beyond even his strenuous personality.

DISCOVERING CANADA

The discovery of Canada is proceeding rapidly. We do not now mean the discovery of the little-known parts of the country, although this is going on with gratifying speed. We mean the discovery of Canada by the traveling Englishman, who believes he has a special prerogative to describe us to the people of his home land just as we are. It is an amusing process. One of the things which has been discovered is that Canadians have ideas of their own. This has been a very cruel awakening to some folk, who came out here firm in the conviction that they were coming to "the Colonies," where the views of the people were exceedingly crude and we all sat round waiting for the gems of wisdom which might fall from the lips of our friends from the Mother Country. It has been a great shock to some of our visitors, and its effect is observable in the letters, which they write to the papers. They did not expect to find here a country, whose people had their own way of looking at things and their own way of doing things, and but some backward folk who would welcome a little kindly instruction from well-meaning friends.

Another discovery is that there are things, which can be bought in London which are not on sale here. Not long ago the Colonist was the recipient of a very serious complaint from a visitor, who could not buy a certain article here that is kept only by some specialists in a few of the larger cities of the Old World. It would be as rational to form an estimate of the business capacity of London, if one should search that city and fail to find a double-bitted axe or a Slivash canoe for sale, as it is to form an estimate of our business men because some little specialty cannot be bought in our stores.

Some of our former visitors have also discovered some things about us. They have not failed to note that in many respects we are exceedingly primitive in our methods of farming, and that we do not cultivate our land as thoroughly as they do in Great Britain. They are therefore disposed to report somewhat adversely. We read a few days ago a letter on farming in Western Canada that appeared in an English paper, in which the writer pointed out that one would look in vain there for the comforts which characterized the farming homes of England, as though it would be possible to provide in two or three years the conditions slowly developed during several centuries.

We suppose that this sort of thing is quite natural. Our critics did not know what to expect, and they are measuring us by their own standards. By and by they will be wiser. In the meantime we must expect to be misrepresented and be misunderstood. As time rolls on, and settlers from the United Kingdom become established in comfort and have grown used to a new land, they will correct the misconceptions that are now so prevalent.

And now to business once again.

The workmen of Victoria did their duty yesterday.

The crisis in the Balkan peninsula will now please proceed.

Speaking of weather, yesterday was an ideal day wasn't it? Old Sol smiled on our petty political controversy with unusual benignity.

Pioneer residents of the city will have some old election memories revived by reading our forty years ago column today.

Now it is China's turn to welcome the United States battleship fleet. The Flowery Kingdom will have its work cut out for it if it hopes to excel the receptions accorded by Australia and Japan.

Bradstreet's last weekly report of bank clearings in Canada indicate a distinct revival in business. The depression of the past year will soon be but an unpleasant memory.

A German newspaper tells its readers that John Bull is in danger owing to the crisis in the Balkan peninsula. This journal might have found some one, closer at home in greater danger as a result of the embroglio.

A gentleman from New York, who was in the city yesterday, expressed himself as confident that Taft would be elected by a huge majority, though he conceded that Bryan would probably carry the Western States. This view coincides with that held by the best-informed critics of the situation.

Rain-fakers who offered to extinguish the forest fires at so much per extinguish have been officially pronounced imposters by the United States government. We had supposed that such palpable frauds would have found it impossible to find anybody to take them seriously.

It is gratifying to know that the great baritone, Emilio de Gogorza, will be greeted by a large audience at the Victoria theatre this evening, and the Victoria Musical Society, under whose auspices he comes, is to be commended for its enterprise in affording local musical lovers opportunity to hear such foremost artists.

A correspondent writes us to complain that he has not been allowed to register as a voter at the municipal election because he is over sixty years of age. There must be some mistake about this. There is probably some disqualification or misunderstanding. We suggest that he ought to state his case to the City Solicitor, who will advise him as to his rights in the premises.

In the excitement attendant upon the elections, undue excitement has not been paid to an important event which will transpire in Victoria on November 4th next. This is the convention here of the Grand Camp of the Arctic Brotherhood. The membership in this order is large and influential, and we all ought to put forth a special effort to entertain the large number of gentlemen and their friends who will honor the city on that occasion.

Last evening, angered by the knowledge of coming defeat, the Times indulged in some very ill-tempered observations regarding the Colonist. We shall not say what they were nor take the trouble to reply to them. The course which we have taken is known to all the citizens and they gave their verdict at the polls yesterday. The malignant remarks of our contemporary are really an insult to the intelligence of 2171 voters who deposited their ballots yesterday for Mr. Barnard. Our contemporary has only made its bad case worse. It had already become discredited and its effusion last evening only served to further damage its reputation.

The lack of power, by which the operations of the B. C. Electric Railway Company in this city are hampered, is really a very serious thing, although, as we all know, if there is the usual precipitation this fall everything will be satisfactory again. The past two years have been very dry, yet there was sufficient rain, if it had been all saved, to keep up the supply required by the company. For reasons that have already been explained, a large amount of the water that had been stored by the Esquimalt company was lost owing to work in progress. In order to correct any misapprehension, it may be mentioned that if the city had been drawing its supply from the Esquimalt watershed and not furnishing the tramway company any power, there would have been very much more than ample water available, even during these dry seasons, for a city several times as large as Victoria.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Very wide-spread interest has been aroused at the momentous experiment which Australia has just embarked upon—that of organizing and maintaining a new national militia. The Montreal Star explains that this is not conscription in the European sense; Beginning at the age of twelve, the new bill—it is a Government measure—compels every youth to take military training for one hour a week and four clear days yearly. When the youth reaches eighteen, he will have to take military training for eighteen clear days every year for three years; and, for five years longer, an annual training of seven clear days. This is a pretty large order, but Australia is thoroughly equipped with the machinery of training itself if it is to protect its unpeopled territory from the over-flooding millions of crowded Asia. This system will make of every man in the country a trained soldier; and it will not require a great deal of time. If the military training from twelve years to eighteen be interpreted to mean little more than school exercises and a few days camping, it will be an excellent thing to teach all the boys to march and form fours and get through the drill manual, as a sort of instinct. Then the eighteen days training from eighteen to twenty-one should give the young Australian a more practical acquaintance with the real work of fighting. Then, for five years more, he will be kept in the "soft training." The demand is not much when the State considers itself in danger; and every patriotic young Australian will have the opportunity with enthusiasm. This additional pressure on Australia and on the Motherland means that Canada must begin to assume her responsibilities more seriously if she is to keep her place in the Empire. We cannot fall behind if we are to demand a hearing when questions of Imperial policy are up. We may win in the end, but while Australia believes to confront it—though we have our Asiatic frontier and have already had our Asiatic questions—but the Empire must be "one and indivisible" if it is to last; and the peril of one part is the peril of the whole.

The Island of Crete.
Like the rest of the Greek Islands, Crete which has further complicated matters in the Near East, by declaring independence, Greece was for many years an integral part of the Turkish Empire. But the Cretans at no time tamely accepted the Mussulman rule; and in 1865 they commenced an insurrection against the Turkish Government which lasted continuously for three years, and finally resulted in a measure of self-government being given to the island by the Turks. In 1889 came one more revolution, and this time the Turkish Government was entirely successful and for five years Crete was governed absolutely by a series of Moslem rulers nominated by the Porte. In 1894, the finances of the island having become hopelessly involved, the Powers persuaded the Sultan, to nominate a Christian Governor, and the Christians then agreed to enter into an Assembly which was intended to remedy the financial situation. This compromise, however, was a failure, and in 1896 a committee of reform appeared in the mountains. Open civil war was for a few months averted by the action of the Ambassador at Constantinople, but at the beginning of 1897 the island was in an open state of insurrection. In February 1897, a Greek expeditionary force landed near Canea, and its commander announced the occupation of the island in King George's name. It was, however, no part of the plan of the European Consuls to allow Greece to acquire Crete, and Candia was at once occupied by an international force, and notes were sent to the Greek and Turkish Governments announcing that Crete must be governed with an effective constitution, and must remain under the suzerainty of the Sultan. The reverse it received from the Turks in Thessaly forced the Greek Government to accept this proposition, and after a deal of deal with the Powers, Crete was restored, the Turkish troops were withdrawn, and Prince George of Greece (who had been nominated by the Powers as High Commissioner) commenced his rule. Prince George's rule was a failure, comparative peace reigned in the island for the next eight years, but the discontent was growing and culminated on April 20, 1905, when the Cretan Assembly voted as follows:
In the name of Almighty God, the Cretan Chamber of Deputies votes and proclaims the union of Crete and Greece, in which Crete will eternally form an inseparable part under the constitutional sceptre of the King of Greece.

At this point the Powers again took a hand, and on May 2, 1905, the Greek flag was lowered by Great Britain. But the insurgents anxious for a union with Greece, were not thus satisfied, and the result was several clashes with troops were sent back to the island. A period of disorder followed. Matters went from bad to worse until on June 25, 1906, the Powers got the upper hand and inaugurated a series of reforms. The Athens newspapers and the annexation party in the island continued to protest against the reforms, and the proposed reforms. Then, whether spontaneously or at the suggestion of some high advisers, at the prince came forward with the most sensible public utterance that he has made for several years. On September 5, he published a message to the Cretans, recommending to all of them "patience, peace and prudence." Speaking of the Powers, he said: "You must not only await their high decisions in a spirit of exemplary order, but you must also await their decisions with the patience which is known to the high personages who, with affection and true warm interest, are working on behalf of the island."

On September 25 Prince George was deposed as Commissioner, and was succeeded by M. Zalmis, former Premier of Greece.
On May 12 of this year, announcement was made by the four protecting Powers that they would withdraw their troops from Crete in the course of the year. The conditions which the Powers had laid down as preliminary to this step were (1) the organization of a native gendarmerie; (2) the maintenance of tranquillity in the island; and (3) the complete security of the Mussulman population. On March 20 the High Commissioner, M. Zalmis, called the attention of the Powers to the circumstance that the three conditions had been realized. It has been deemed highly probable that when the troops were withdrawn the Cretans who would then be master of their destinies, would issue a prompt declaration of union with Greece. It was destined that the union should take place in the near future, and it is not surprising that it should come now.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The British Colonist, Tuesday, Oct. 27, 1868.
Nanaimo Election.—It was Mr. Bishop's intention to go to Nanaimo this morning by the Sir James Douglas to canvas the electors of that town, but as we are aware that notwithstanding his application to the courts yesterday in a case in which he is engaged, the magistrate decided that that case must proceed today, and Mr. Bishop is thus detained in the city.

England vs. B. C.—A rifle match has been arranged to come off shortly between the London Victorians and the representatives of our Colonial Volunteers, ten men on either side. At Wimbledon on the 2nd of November, and over the Victoria's range, Mount Tominie, one week later, have the dates of shooting been fixed. The distances are 200, 400, 500 and 600 yards—five rounds at each.

New Group.—Flier came out again yesterday with another group. Drs. Helmecken and Powell are in consultation over Mr. De Cosmos, who is represented as suffering from Dr. Helmecken's anti-Confederation pills. The cartoonist got all the likenesses are unmistakable, Dr. Helmecken in particular.

ABOUT PEOPLE

Christmas Island, in the mid-Pacific Ocean, where the steamer Aeon ran ashore in July last with fifty-six souls, of whose experiences Reuter sent an account from Melbourne the other day, is a barren island which was discovered, and to which the name was given, in 1777, by Captain Cook in his last and fatal voyage. The description of the island by the shipwrecked people as one upon which there was "no living thing" tallies with that of Captain Cook, as was his wont, tried to leave the island less barren than he had found it.

Captains Cook and Clerke arrived at the islands on December 24, and a few days afterwards took observations of an eclipse of the sun, which they had to do off on account of the great heat. Not a drop of fresh water was to be had, nor was there a single coconut tree on that part of the island, and in order to allay their thirst they had to kill turtles and drink their blood. There was no trace of human beings ever having been there. "Having some coconuts and yams on board," wrote Cook, "I ordered them to be planted on the spot where I had observed the eclipse, and some melon seeds were sown in another place. I also left on the island a bottle containing the following inscription:—
Georgius Tertius, Rex, 31 December, 1777.

Naves, Resolution, Jac. Cook, Pr. Naves, Discovery, Car. Clerke, Pr. As we kept our Christmas here, we called our discovery Christmas Island.
Owing to the marriage relations between the royal families of England and Sweden King Gustavus V. and his Consort are, says the Daily Chronicle, sure of a more than cordial reception at Windsor next month, and the new Lord Mayor will certainly head the procession of the city. The King, writes Mr. Hare in "The Story of My Life," "wished the Prince to have a quiet month in England to accustom himself to the language and people before going to London."

"I like and admire most things English," said the late King of Sweden, "but I will not conceal from you that I do not admire Lord Beaconsfield." Gustavus V. shares to the full his father's liking for all things English, thanks in great measure to the precept and example of his mentor, Mr. Hare, who, after a year's intercourse with him, summed up his opinion of his pupil's character in the words used by Gwely of Charles I.: "Never was there a more graceful prince or a more proper gentleman." In the interval Prince Gustav has been a frequent visitor to England, and at the coronation of King Edward he was selected as the representative of his father. His brother, Prince Oscar, resigned his rights of succession to the throne in order of the cabinet which had been defeated, and this was the electors' emphatic answer to the treatment which the interests of this province had received at the hands of the Laurier administration. (p. 149) And if Mr. Barnard were unable to secure proper attention to our interests he would doubt rather resign than remain in so unsatisfactory a position in the House of Commons. (Applause.)

Vigorous and effective speeches were also made by Messrs. F. Davis, M.P.P., J. L. Beckwith, H. Behnson, M.P.P., H. B. Thomson, M.P.P., E. A. Lewis, Leonard Tait, Henry Price, J. W. Bolden, R. W. Peters, E. E. McPhillips, M.P.P., and H. Cuthbert.
Mr. Tait moved a vote of thanks to the editors of the Colonist and the Week, as well as to the managers of the different departments of these papers for the excellent work which they had done during the campaign. Mr. Barnard seconding the motion, which was carried with general applause.
The remark made by Mr. Beckwith that Julius Caesar was not the only party who was dead tonight aroused much laughter and was cheered enthusiastically.

Three enthusiastic cheers and a tiger were then given for Mr. Barnard and the proceedings closed with the singing of the national anthem.
Negro Will Hang

BRITISH OPINION

Belfast Whig:—In that masterpiece of irony "Friendship's Garland" Matthew Arnold gives us a delicious picture of a correspondent in the Franco-Prussian war riding with a prince at either stirrup leathers. Mr. Foster does not push it this far, but it is really astonishing how many counts, marquises, and governors of provinces he manages to stumble across in the course of his experiences. He has dined with the Marquis de, and if he did not meet the Alcade had the doubtful honor of smoking one of his cigars. He has seen the Sultan make weekly pilgrimage to the Mosque, heard Gladstone's last speech, and been escorted over the harem of the Governor of Zenjan. He has frankly enjoyed it all. "It is nice," he naively remarks, "to be invited to the houses of great men in the land," and where an author's folio takes such a harmless form only an exceptionally thin-skinned reader would allow himself to be annoyed. Mr. Foster indeed disarms criticism from the first. "My books," he tells us, "makes no pretence to be other than journeyman work. Some of them are already forgotten, as all of them I shall be in the future of time." But, "Life's Contrasts" has been written to please himself, and the pity is he has not written it in his own way. Journalism is a hard business, and the dyer's hand is very soon subdued to what he works in, but there is no reason why anyone should be so aggressively journalistic as Mr. Fraser. The stuff positively clamors for scare headlines, and the phrases and parallels have that air of false originality that came into fashion after the Kipling boom. Electric cars are "clanging, hurrying chunks of light," the decorations of a room are described as being "gently melodious," and a song is "moan-some," while the golden domes of the Lavra at Kiev make points of fire with "a gliss" of the sun, and so on and so on.

While the writing gets extreme modernity the thoughts it bodes forth are commonplace almost to fatuity. Take "A Common Pair of Pictures," in which Mr. Foster contrasts the luxury of a dinner party at the Savoy with the squalor of the Surrey side, and compare it with George Stevens's chapters "The Unstable Rich," and "The Unstable Poor," in "Glimpses of Three Nations," and you will see at once the difference between popular journalism and the thing called "Life's Contrasts" is concerned only with the surface of things, and a thousand illustrations drawn from Burmese jungles, the sand-swept Gobi desert, or the mountains of Albania cannot conceal that central defect. Mr. Foster flatters himself that he has seen life unlike "the mincing youths with the plike eyes and weak mouths and conceited insane babbling which are characteristic of the middle-class young man of London." But life has given him a revealing vision, he thinks in newspaper headlines, and after this drum-and-trumpet rhetoric in praise of the lust of the eye and the pride of the flesh how refreshing it is to turn to the essay in which Maeterlinck combats the illusion that external violence are the realities of life.

"I have grown to believe that an old man seated in his armchair waiting patiently with his lamp beside him, giving unconscious ear to all the eternal laws that reign about his house, submitting himself to the head of the presence of his soul and his destiny. . . . I have grown to believe that he, motionless as he is, does yet live in reality a deeper, more human, more universal life than the lover who strangles his mistress, the warrior who plunges in battle, or the husband who avenges his honor."
There is more beauty and more philosophy in that passage than in the three hundred odd pages of "Life's Contrasts."

carted away for safe keeping and he stated that the count would be officially announced at 2 p.m. today. It is expected a recount will be sought by the defeated candidate.

Thanks the Press.
The chairman, "Mr. Barnard has forgotten to compliment the Times for the good work which it has done for our cause. (Hear, hear). For I can assure you that the Times by its course during this election, has made more votes for the Conservative party than it has influenced for the Liberal party." (Hear, hear and applause.)
Mr. Blakemore drew attention to the fact that Mr. Templeman was the only member of the cabinet which had been defeated, and this was the electors' emphatic answer to the treatment which the interests of this province had received at the hands of the Laurier administration. (p. 149) And if Mr. Barnard were unable to secure proper attention to our interests he would doubt rather resign than remain in so unsatisfactory a position in the House of Commons. (Applause.)

Vigorous and effective speeches were also made by Messrs. F. Davis, M.P.P., J. L. Beckwith, H. Behnson, M.P.P., H. B. Thomson, M.P.P., E. A. Lewis, Leonard Tait, Henry Price, J. W. Bolden, R. W. Peters, E. E. McPhillips, M.P.P., and H. Cuthbert.
Mr. Tait moved a vote of thanks to the editors of the Colonist and the Week, as well as to the managers of the different departments of these papers for the excellent work which they had done during the campaign. Mr. Barnard seconding the motion, which was carried with general applause.
The remark made by Mr. Beckwith that Julius Caesar was not the only party who was dead tonight aroused much laughter and was cheered enthusiastically.

Three enthusiastic cheers and a tiger were then given for Mr. Barnard and the proceedings closed with the singing of the national anthem.

Dickens' Dora
An interesting little book has just been privately printed for the Bibliophile Society of Boston. It contains letters that passed between Charles Dickens and Marie Beadness—subsequently Mrs. Henry L. Winter—the youngest of three daughters of the manager of a London bank. Dickens met her in 1832 and fell in love with her. The parental opposition, plus the fickleness of his innamorata, dictated the chilly finality of her refusal, and two years later Dickens married Catherine Hogarth, while Miss Beadnell shortly afterward became the wife of Winter.
As every one knows, "David Copperfield" is largely autobiographical, and Mrs. Winter is the original of fond and fatuous Dora, the child wife, whose mental and spiritual development fail to keep pace with her husband's, who is, withal, an engaging and lovable figure in his eyes and in the suffrages of countless thousands of readers. Some twenty years later Mrs. Winter wrote to Dickens—by that time the father of nine children—and the rich and famous novelist responded in sentimental vein, telling her that she is his Copperfield heroine, that the novel authentically mirrors the passion once felt for her, and subscribing himself, "Ever affectionately yours." In another letter, which—anticipating Mr. Roosevelt—he begins "My dear Maria," he suggests that Mrs. Winter shall call at his house on Sunday, politely inviting first for Mrs. Dickens, who undoubtedly will not be in. Mrs. Winter came and saw and did not conquer. In twenty years the lady had aged perceptibly. She had grown stout. She was no longer beautiful although as large of a woman as ever.
After this disillusionment of this infatuation, Dickens was as cold and distant as the snows of Mars, and convinced by his letters—frigid to the point of downright unkindness—to "kill" the correspondence. Three years later, Mr. Winter having suffered business reverses, Mrs. Winter broke the silence to ask Dickens to lend them money. Mr. Dickens sent his regrets on that occasion, and also when, somewhat later, her father died. The meeting of Dickens and Mrs. Winter twenty years after the David and Dora days is depicted in the episode of the meeting of Flora Finching mother's because the boy thinks the father understands his situation better than a mother can. The boy is just entering the world of man, the father already moves and has his bearings in that world and if the boy respects his father he is apt to respect and accept his opinion as to matters whereof the father has had experience and the son not.

As to girls, it is reported by persons in a position to observe to advantage the girls of the generation that many of them emerge from the contemporary processes of education with ideas, standards and intentions of their own so definite and positive as to bring the contemporary mother to confusion and dismay. The mother has her views and plans for her daughter's next proceedings; wise plans, probably based on sound experience; but the education of women has changed very much in a generation, and perhaps it is not to be wondered at that it should be a common thing for such a disparity to obtain between the mother's hopes and the daughter's preference and to strain maternal patience and fill affection. At such a crisis a father, knowing less about the particular mould in which it is proper that girls should be run, is apt to be less scandalized than the mother at the reluctance of his own girl to be run in it. Sympathizing with both attitudes, he is sometimes able to temper both the mother's expectations and the daughter's reluctances and so ease along the modification of tradition and help to keep peace and love in the family.
No father wants to throw a daughter away. Mothers in their perplexity sometimes feel that it is a choice between that and running away themselves. To see that neither disaster happens is a worthy work of which ever so fallible a father may contribute very much, provided he brings to the task a proper spirit of patience and humility.
And contrariwise, when the mother sees only with the daughter's eyes and has no wishes but hers, and is ready to be her doorman and her drudge—in that wheel, too, a father can be an important spoke, and make it turn in better accord with natural propriety.

ANNUAL INDUSTRIAL IRISH CONFERENCE

Importance of Efforts to Develop Export Trade Was Emphasized

Dublin, Oct. 26.—The annual Irish Industrial Conference, which was held in Galway, was in every sense one of the most remarkable that has yet taken place. In addition to representatives from all parts of Ireland, there were delegates present from Australia, New Zealand, Canada, the United States, France, Germany, etc. The proceedings were opened by Sir James O'Donoghue, chairman of the urban council; and the first resolution, which was proposed by Lord Dunraven, emphasized the importance of an organized effort to develop the export trade of Ireland. Lord Dunraven, in the course of his speech, said that Irish goods should live on their own merits, while he believed the present industrial revival would have the sympathy, not only of Irishmen in other countries, but also of many foreigners, he was anxious that the opening of outside markets to them should not be taken as an appeal for charitable consideration.

The Rev. William O'Flanagan, an American Roman Catholic, said that for the past 20 or 30 years Irish delegates had been coming to America to ask for money, but, if the energy and perseverance so expended were applied in industrial effort, the results would be incomparably better. Lord Dunraven said that what was especially important to Ireland was to bring the producer and the market together, and he was glad to know that such excellent work in that direction had been done to America. This was especially important in the case of cottage industries.

Lord Castletown, of Upper Ossory, urged that in the new Irish Universities adequate provision should be made for the training of students in subjects appertaining to commercial and industrial pursuits. The system that obtained in Belgium of progressive education for the primary and throughout the intermediate school up to the university seemed to him admirably suited to the wants of Ireland.

Colonel Nugent Everard moved a resolution appealing to Irish landlords whose estates had been transferred to tenants under the land purchase system to invest a share of their purchase money and bonus towards the revival of Irish industries. He referred to the Land Conference, and said that, according to its recommendations, which afterwards became law, landlords were not to be obliged to leave Ireland. By the act of 1903, landlords were to receive the equivalent at least of their incomes. The agreement, he regretted to say, had not been carried out by the third party to it—namely, the treasury. When reference, therefore, was made to the Irish landlords who had sold their property, it should be remembered that only a small proportion of them had received the purchase money and bonus. There was no right to suppose that the landlords were not willing to abide by the spirit of the Land Conference agreement. Many of them were members of the Industrial Conference. He had seen no such thing as an exodus of the landlords whose sales were completed, and he believed that no such thing would take place. On the contrary, he was satisfied that they desired as a body to remain in Ireland, and do what was in their power to promote the country's welfare. The speech was received with applause, and the resolution which it advocated was unanimously adopted.

SUPPRESSION OF OPIUM

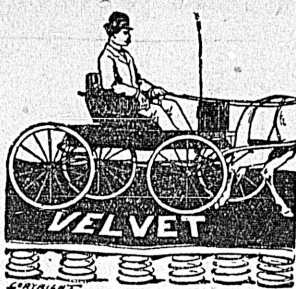

British Minister in Peking Complains of Slackness of Officials

Shanghai, Oct. 26.—The British Minister in Peking is reported to have sent a despatch to the Chinese government complaining of the slackness with which opium is being suppressed in the various provinces. Sir J. Jordan states that reports from British Consuls in the various Treaty Ports show that the consumption of the drug has recently increased instead of decreased. This, he says, is due to the looseness with which the opium regulations are enforced by the provincial authorities. The Minister adds that, if China cannot abolish the opium trade within ten years the Chinese government will be asked to pay an indemnity to the Indian government for losses sustained in reducing the amount of opium exported into China, and that the relations between Great Britain and China will thus be impaired. The despatch was despatched to the Chinese government by the Grand Council for perusal. After she had read it over, the Empress Dowager at once sent for the Imperial Commissioners of Opium Prohibition, who were severely reprimanded and ordered to explain themselves. After the audience, the Commissioner held a meeting with the members of the Grand Council, and it decided that the cultivation of the poppy in China would be prohibited within the next year. It was further decided to send a punitive expedition to the various provinces to make personal investigations in regard to the suppression of opium.

FAINTED IN CHURCH

Peruvian Lady of Good Family Overcome by Hunger in Paris

Paris, Oct. 26.—While the beads in the church of Saint Louis were being said, making his rounds the other day, he was surprised to find a lady, apparently lifeless, in the nave of the building. After vain attempts to restore her to consciousness, he called in the police, and the lady, who had merely fainted from weakness and want, was conveyed to a hospital, where she has since recovered. Her story turned out to be a very sad one. She comes of a good family in Peru, and is the aunt of a former Peruvian Minister of War. She had at one time considerable fortune of her own, but lost it through ill-advised speculation, and has been in France for some time perfectly destitute, so much so that fears are now entertained for her reason. After she had partly recovered at the hospital she said that she had come from Havre where she had been staying at the Hotel Moderne, and that she had met in a few days a lawyer from New York who had informed her that he had inherited the sum of $1,000,000 from her brother. Unfortunately she turned out that this supposed inheritance was merely an illusion. The Peruvian Legation here had procured for her a passage on a steamer and arranged for her to return to South America. It was no easy matter to persuade her to leave Paris, as she was always waiting for the imaginary lawyer to appear with the supposed inheritance. An employee accompanied her to the train, but she got off at the first station and returned to the city. At the hospital she suddenly had an idea that the date for the arrival of the lawyer had come, and she was with difficulty kept in her bed. As soon as the attendant had turned his back she got up, and was going to leave the hospital, but she was so weak that she was unable to stand on her feet, and fell to the floor.

SHOOTING OUTRAGE REPORTED IN IRELAND

Ennis Farmer Shot in the Back While Entering His House

Dublin, Oct. 26.—On Friday night a shooting outrage was committed at Rathcathmaun, seven miles from Ennis. A farmer named Michael Casey was entering his house about 7 o'clock when two shots were fired at him, portions of both charges striking him on the back of the head and shoulder. Although badly wounded and bleeding, he tried to get to the back door and reported the outrage, after which he fainted from loss of blood. The police summoned Dr. Macnamara of Corofin, who examined the injured man and found 28 pellets had penetrated the skin. On Saturday morning the police visited the place and made inquiries, but so far no arrests have been made. This is the second time within two years that Mr. Casey has been shot at; in July last year he was fired upon while visiting a farm, although he was followed by a police constable. It is believed that the outrage is due to the fact that a brother of Mr. Casey has taken a portion of a farm which it is considered locally should be divided among the people. An outrage of an equally daring character is reported from Kilar in County Clitine. Three laborers while reaping corn for Miss Godley, the owner of property in the district, were fired upon from a plantation on Friday evening. One of them, a man named John Clay, received the charge in his leg and is in a serious condition. His companion searched the grove from which the shots were fired, but failed to discover any trace of Clay's assailants.

The World's Biggest Farm.

The biggest farm—if "farm" it can be called—is that owned by Don Luis Terrazas, of the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, which measures from north to south 150 miles and from east to west 200 miles, or 8,000,000 acres in all. On its prairies and mountains roam 1,000,000 head of cattle, 700,000 sheep and 100,000 horses, says the New York Post. The "ranch" is probably the most magnificent in the world, for it cost almost $220,000 to build, and is more richly furnished than many a royal palace. On the homestead alone are employed 100 male servants. The gardens are superbly laid out, the stables are magnificent and there is accommodation for 500 guests if necessary.

Scattered over the vast ranch are 100 outlying stations, each one of which has charge of a certain portion of the estate. The Terrazas cowboys, line-riders, shepherds and hunters number 2,000, and the Terrazas ranch is the only one in the world which maintains its own slaughtering plant. Each year 150,000 head of cattle are slaughtered, dressed and packed and 100,000 sheep. Don Luis personally supervises the different industries on his ranch, covering many thousands of miles on horseback during a twelvemonth. Don Luis was at one time governor of Chihuahua, but public life did not suit him; it was too quiet, and he preferred to spend his life riding over the plains and looking after his own enterprises. He is three times as rich as any other man in Mexico.

Don Luis founded his cattle ranch about fourteen years ago and four years later he sought to import the finest cattle from Scotland and England. There was a considerable difficulty in the way. The import duty on foreign cattle was so heavy that it was impossible to bring over the animals in quantities sufficient for his

Five years ago Terrazas installed on his ranch four big reservoirs, costing $500,000, besides which there are 300 wells scattered over the huge farm, some of them going down to a depth of 500 feet. Every kind of grain is grown and Don Luis is constantly experimenting in the raising of different "foods" for supplying the wants of his immense herds during the rainless season.

A FEW CUTTING REMARKS

The purpose of a saw is to cut. It should cut easily, cut cleanly, and cut with every movement. I prefer an Atkins Saw. Its blade is "Silver Steel", recognized the world over as the finest available steel ever made in an ancient modern times. It is hard, close-grained and tough. It holds a sharp cutting edge longer than any other saw. Its blade tapers perfectly from thick to thin, from handle to tip. Thus it makes leeway for itself, runs easily and does not buckle. Its temper is perfect. When bent by a crooked thrust, it springs into shape without kinking. The Atkins Saw cuts—and does it best of any. We make all types and sizes of saws, but only one grade—the best.

MEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT HERE

Report Presented at Meeting of Anglican Young People's Association

At the business meeting of the Anglican Young People's Association, Mr. A. G. Little made his report on the meetings of the Men's Missionary Movement in Victoria, which is as follows:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen—It was my privilege and pleasure to attend the meetings of the Men's Missionary Movement as your delegate, and also with your President to hear the powerful speech made by Mr. J. Campbell White, at a banquet given by the committee in his honor. Mr. White and his fellow workers in the movement are all hard-headed business men who have taken in hand the enormous task of stimulating missionary work among the churches in Canada, and the United States. The idea which was placed before the church in this movement was the evangelization of the world in this generation. Mr. White urged the business men of Canada to take up the question of missions in a practical businesslike manner, and not with the half-hearted sentimentality in which it had been treated up to now. It will be necessary for me before proceeding further to give you some idea of the present state of affairs in the mission field, and what it is proposed we should do to accomplish our ideal. Protestant churches of all denominations have contributed during the last year $22,460,000 for church purposes in their respective countries, while less than ten millions have been given to missions. There are 13,000 missionaries working in the field of which not 6,000 are ordained. If we divide the heathen world in which we are now working into 27,000 districts of 25,000 people to each district and over each group of 25,000 people place one missionary, our present missionary force would be able to evangelize 325 millions in this generation, and remember there is a difference between evangelizing and converting people, we only propose to give them an opportunity of hearing the gospel in the hope that they will be converted. Canada has now only 300 missionaries in the foreign field, and the L.M.M. are endeavoring to raise this number to 1,600. The average cost of a missionary, including native workers, buildings and traveling expenses is $2,000 per annum, which would make it necessary for Canada to raise $3,200,000 to support 1,600 missionaries. Now let us suppose that our present 13,000 missionaries could perform the impossible task of evangelizing 325,000,000 people, we should still have 675,000,000 to whose ears the gospel message could not reach. When you have thought carefully over these few facts, I have no doubt that you will come to the conclusion that it is not only our duty, but it would be a glorious privilege to help Canada to so increase her force in the mission field that the evangelization of the world in our own generation may become within the next twelve months not merely a possibility, but the greatest of all probabilities. No special fund is being raised for the purpose but what we are asked to do is to increase our own missionary funds. Many of you no doubt will say we cannot afford to give anything worth while, but think! could we not all afford to give five cents a week? How many things do you often needlessly throw away five cents on? We hope to have at least 100 members at the beginning of our new year, and if every member would give 5 cents a week to missions we could send our M.S.C.C. the sum of $250 a year and with very little effort this could be increased to $300 or even more. Surely this is better than nothing. By this small sum we would be evangelizing 150 heathen per year, and I feel that no better monumental evidence of our existence could be shown and in no better manner could we bear out in our work the motto of our association "For Christ and the Church."

After much applause, the President thanked Mr. Little for his report, and urged the association, and especially the missionary committee to carry out the speaker's proposals, for he felt sure that the more interest that was taken in missionary work the greater would be the interest in our home and parochial organizations.

Concert on Wednesday.

An excellent concert will be given in St. John's church hall tomorrow evening under the auspices of the Anglican Young People's Society.

Case Is Remanded

Funeral of Pioneer

The funeral of the late Henry Jenkinson took place yesterday afternoon from the parlors of the B. C. Funeral Home, at 2:30 o'clock, where service was conducted by the Rev. T. W. Gladstone, and also at the graveside. The following acted as pallbearers: Alex. Wilson, E. Carter, J. Smith, D. McCallum, J. McKinley, Hy. Moss.

Mr. Bowser Back

Unless he gets an unexpected release, Attorney General Bowser will come over to Victoria tonight in order to attend an important executive meeting on the following day. He is still far from well, but insisted on getting out as soon as he possibly could.

Maccabees Review

This evening at 8 o'clock, the ladies of Hive No. 1, of the Maccabees, will hold a regular review in the A. O. U. W. hall. A cordial invitation is extended to members of all Victoria lodges. The following are the members of the meeting, which will be made as brief as possible, a social time will be spent.

Concerts at Empress Hotel.

Miss Cordella Grylls, an English artist of distinction, of London, Eng., will sing in the rotunda of the Empress hotel tomorrow and Saturday evenings of the present week, beginning her concert upon each occasion at nine o'clock. The programme for tomorrow evening includes a number of beautiful English ballads, as well as several songs, which will be given by request. A cordial invitation is extended to the friends of the hotel as well as the public generally to be present upon these occasions, while these concerts will be continued upon the same evenings of subsequent weeks, and until further notice.

Concert This Evening

This evening in St. John's hall, a concert will be held for which an enjoyable programme has been prepared. The following will take part: Miss Lugin, contralto; Miss Mildred Sweet, soprano; Miss Greenhalgh, violin; Miss Hewlings, piano; F. Waddington, bass; G. Petch, tenor; Mr. Robinson, concert pianist; Mark Harby, ventriloquist.

Assize Postponed

Deputy Attorney General Maclean returned yesterday from Vernon, where he had gone to take the assizes. These were adjourned from time to time, and eventually were put over till Nov. 2. Mr. Justice Martin had been assigned to hold court at Kamloops, and was afterwards to go to Vernon. However, there was a long civil suit which took about ten days in addition to the other business, at the end of which his lordship found himself in need of a few days' rest. Mr. Maclean accordingly returned to Victoria.

GOGORZA TONIGHT AT THE VICTORIA

Great Baritone Will This Evening Delight Local Music Lovers

Emilio di Gogorza, the great baritone will sing at the Victoria theatre tonight, and no one should miss the opportunity of hearing this wonderful singer. Mr. Gogorza has had a splendid tour. Packed audiences have characterized all his concerts and he is in the fast lane of which give more than three concerts a week and to this is undoubtedly due the wonderful freshness and beauty of his voice. Since his concert in Seattle last Thursday, he has been residing at the Empress hotel and will leave tomorrow for Portland. The concert this evening will begin promptly at 8:30 o'clock and late-comers will only be admitted between the numbers. "The Boston Globe" says of Gogorza: "Emilio di Gogorza is the most dramatic baritone who visits Boston nowadays. His voice is grand without being harsh, and his method is so easy in appearance, his sense of pitch so strong that the impression produced is of a man absolutely at his ease, and giving expression to real dramatic feeling. Even more than on his last visit, Mr. de Gogorza displayed a wonderfully flexible voice. Really fine baritones are rare birds, and are to be had neither among the 'bull-voicers' nor the sentimental 'near-tenors'; the man with a virile quality in his make-up and voice usually succeeds merely in seeming to sing. With the singing in the veiled voice and almost never actually that frank opinion about the pitch with his hearers. One adds that Gogorza comes as near being the ideal baritone as anybody who has sung here in a long time, and then forgives him that he leaves the ring of the shaking rattlers, and turns loose a tone occasionally that is calculated to hold its own against orchestras, Wagnerian scores and enthusiastic baton-wavers."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

In Woman's Realm

HERE AND THERE

Forty years ago, in Canada, if a lad showed any special ability, his parents were ready to make great sacrifices in order to send him to college. The consequence was there were more doctors, lawyers and ministers than could find employment. Now people who are better off and have education is not so hard to obtain. The university is brought nearer to the people. It has, however, come to be believed that those whose aim it is to make money will not find in a professional career the opportunities they seek. Even the most learned and successful of the clergy are far from rich. It is the condition of the man of exceptional gifts who can hope to attain great wealth and the last Dominion Medical Monthly warns those who are looking about them for a career that the ranks of the medical profession are overcrowded. It says: "The outlook for the medical student is a grave one. Before entering upon the study of medicine the candidate should pause and think deeply. The medical colleges are again opening in Canada, and it is impossible to say what the number in attendance will be, nor yet what the first year classes will total up to. It would be interesting to tabulate the various reasons which induce these young men, many of them fresh from the high schools of the country, with practically no training in life of any sort, to enter upon the medical career as the one most respectable which offers itself as a fitting vocation for their life-work. Have they a call? If they have and can combine therewith a natural aptitude for the laboriously anxious life they will hereafter lead in prosecuting their profession, then it may be all very well with them. But on the contrary, if they are looking for an easy mode of making a living and some money, as well as becoming members of a respectable calling, then there is in store for many of them keen disappointments."

This, is no doubt, all very true. But the world needs great doctors, as much now as ever it did. With advancing civilization there are new problems confronting the men who spend their lives in trying to cure the ills to which these bodies of ours are a prey. The number of men who have made great discoveries in this science is not too large. There may be too many who are content to follow in the old paths but of those who have a passion for the art of healing there is still room. In the profession of law, too, there is still room for the man of eminent qualifications. We have not too many learned and upright judges, nor too many lawyers whose lives are devoted to the pursuit of justice.

And if this is true of the professions of law and medicine it is yet more true of those whose duty it is to lead the thoughts of Canadian people to the highest things. Not only our own country, but the whole world is crying out for the prophet who shall lead the people to see the truth. Our standards of right and wrong are changing. Doubt and uncertainty have taken the place of the firm beliefs which half a century ago ruled the hearts of the people. Men and women argue, not only about doctrines, but about rules of conduct that were formerly looked upon as immutable. They need guidance as they never needed it before. Few will contend that however good and learned individual preachers may be there is not need for greater learning and a deeper devotion among the ministry of the country. Is it not time then that we laid aside the idea that the gathering up of riches is the chief aim of life? If our boys and girls too were taught to choose the career in which they would be most useful to their fellows there would be fewer failures and less disappointment. To do the work which each can do best in the very best way should be the aim of all and to this end all education should lead.

How to draw line between a praiseworthy economy, and unworthy meanness is one that faces most women constantly. The number that have unlimited means at their disposal is very small. What is extravagant, one may be a proper expenditure for another but all are confronted with the old and homely duty of making both ends meet. There are women with a genius for spending and for saving. They can keep a family comfortably on a small income, in the hands of a less skillful manager, be painfully insufficient for their needs. How they do it is a constant source of wonderment to their neighbors. Others apparently as industrious and as careful find life one long struggle while they acquire a competence before old age comes. What looks as easy to outsiders usually is the fruit of constant self denial. The smallest expenditures are most carefully planned. Nothing is brought which is not needed. Above all, however small the income may be, it is never all spent. Week by week and month by month unless sickness or misfortune intervenes a little is saved. In the course of time the savings are carefully invested and the income becomes larger. Such women are very often among the most generous givers but their charity is always the result of forethought and is, as a rule wisely bestowed. The anxiety that always accompanies debt never absorbs the attention of these housewives. The thoughtless careless spender never so capable and industrious will never achieve the success that awaits such foresight and economy. Among the arts that all women need to learn none is more important than those of spending wisely and of saving without being mean and thrifty hands where they will be ready for instant use. The buttons on the back of her waists are much need now as in the past.

Sewing Hints

The woman who always looks well dressed and well groomed is the woman who always mends her clothes as soon as a need appears. When she discards her old clothes or household linen it is not because they are torn or dirty, it is because they are old style and worn thin. Mending is a lost art nowadays. There are few women who can mend intelligently. This perfectly-groomed woman, however, keeps her needles and threads handy, where they will be ready for instant use. The buttons on the back of her waists are much need now as in the past.

gloves are mended as soon as a rip appears and her stockings and underwear are kept free from holes. She never has to sit down and spend a whole day mending a big basketful of clothes, for her mending never accumulates and she never lets the rents or rips in her garments go until they are great big, gaping holes. The braids on her skirt that is beginning to fray is ripped off and replaced with new. Her underclothes are neatly darned and patched before there is a hole. The thin spots are detected and carefully mended before they wear through and when underwear, either woolen or muslin, is too far gone to make further patching advisable, it is cut down for children's wear.

With a stitch here and another one there, clothes can be kept in perfect condition. If all spots are removed as soon as they appear and all creases erased by careful and thorough pressing.

In making garments for girls it is always important to arrange for lengthening the same.

First—One of the usual methods is to have a series of tucks at the hem. This is somewhat of a trimming and later proves convenient by letting out the tucks, one or more, as is required.

Second—If the dress or skirt is plain the hem may be let down and a facing put in. Third—If number two does not give sufficient length, then instead of facing when letting out the hem add an extension hem that will give the necessary length, being careful to match the design, if there is any in the material. A row of feather stitching may be made over the joining or a finishing braid may be placed over it.

Fourth—Several rows of insertion may be set in near the bottom of the skirt.

Fifth—For girls a little older, a circular or pointed yoke may be put in at the top of the skirt.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

When milk has burned, pour it at once into a pitcher and stand it in a basin of cold water until it is cool, when it will be found to be quite free from the burned smell and taste. Also when anything has burned in the double boiler, instead of replenishing the steamer part with hot water, use cold for the same effect.

A handy disinfectant for household use is made of chlorate of lime moistened with vinegar and water in equal parts. It may be kept in the cellar all the time, and in case of sickness a few drops scattered about will purify the air in the room.

If your soup is found too salty add a few slices of raw potatoes and cook a little longer. The potato will absorb the surplus salt.

Pears, apples and bananas dressed with mayonnaise and served in lettuce cups make a delicious salad for this season.

Dietetic Hints.

"You can make a person good or bad, honest or dishonest simply by seeking the right kind of diet."—Bishop Fallows of Chicago.

It was once understood, if a baby was good, That so far from deserving the credit, he

Owed each little grace one might happen to trace

In his tiny white soul to heredity. The converse, of course, had equivalent force:

If virtuous ways were too tame for him,

If he fell in his crib and tore holes

In his bib,

Bad ancestors must be to blame for him.

This creed had its day 'n the usual way

Till some one invented another one, Which, of course, being new, very rapidly grew

Till everyone scouted the other one; Environment next was the popular text—

A model of virtue the lad might be If rescued in time from the purities of

No matter how wicked his dad might be.

But science in vain made attempts to explain

The nature of vice in the laws of it; She failed in her search; it was left to

To find the mysterious cause of it. Come, trainers of youth, hear the Bishop's new truth!

This briefly will give you the sum of it:

You may turn any brat into this, into that,

By what you may put in the tum of it.

Your virtue and vice—to be short and concise—

Have did alone for their origin. If a babel to emerge like a saint I should use planning parties for Saturday night. In addition to the ordinary games and tricks, the following from the Portland Telegram will give ingenious girls some hints:

A plentiful pouring of porridge in. A banting would shrink from Welsh rabbit, I think.

For Halloween.

In decorating rooms or tables for Halloween parties autumn leaves play a most important part, and whether they be the genuine leaves or those of paper certainly no decoration is more attractive. The real leaves when sent from the florist's are, of course, an easy solution to the problem of Halloween decoration, but it adds infinitely more pleasure to the festival if they are gathered by the girls and boys who are to participate in the good time of the evening. For the girl who cannot gather her autumn leaves it is great fun to make them from paper and one may turn out a great many branches of beautiful leaves without the expenditure of much time or an unusual amount of skill. The paper foliage, of course, has the great advantage of not withering and wilting up in heated rooms as does the natural foliage.

In making the paper foliage natural branches are used, and on these are wired the small branches of leaves. The leaves are cut from plain crepe paper, which is spread out on a table and hastily brushed over with vermilion and a touch of green water color, and sometimes with a touch of yellow. The foundation color may be green, yellow or brown. The leaves are then allowed to dry and they will curl up a little in doing so, which makes them look natural. Large branches of leaves are used to decorate the fireplace, mantel-piece and window corners, while for the table there are separate leaves, with stems bound with brownish green tissue paper or small branches laid around the central decoration. The leaves may be cut from the Halloween napkin drapery, etc., which comes especially for such uses during the festival. This is probably the easiest method of making the foliage although it does not, of course, afford the same opportunity for the exercise of individual skill and taste.

Another favorite Halloween decoration, that of the pumpkin vine, is also made of paper in two tones of green with the rich pumpkins in natural colors gleaming from among the heavy dark foliage. The pumpkins are made of the crepe paper stuffed with cotton wool and they are to be merely decorative. Sometimes, however, a pumpkin vine is used as a means of storing away treasures which are to be distributed among the guests. The vine may be used to decorate a corner of the room, but it is not hung too high for the guests to reach. The treasure pumpkins with case. Each pumpkin is made over a box which contains a favor significant of the season. The outside of the box is surrounded by cotton so as to make a globe, which when covered with the yellow crepe paper will resemble a pumpkin. When it is preferred to have the pumpkin vine for a table decoration it is arranged in a circle in the centre, but near enough to the edge of the table for each guest to reach it with ease. The pumpkins are then distributed that each guest has his portion of the fruits of the evening directly in front of his place.

Jack-o'-lanterns containing favors in the form of Halloween fortunes or emblems, black cats, witches, bats, etc., are very popular and most effective for a party given in honor of the festival. They are made after the usual manner of Jack Horner pies, with yellow ribbons extending from the centre of the room, to each of the guests. The Jack is covered with pumpkin colored paper with dark green trimmings, and his features are most effectively carried out in black tissue paper cut to resemble his distinctly plebeian eyes, nose and mouth.

Most attractive witches, cats, bats, etc., which are necessary part of the Halloween decorations, may also be cut from the decorated paper unless one requires a very large size. A little ingenuity, even through skill in drawing is lacking, may evolve a witch as sizable as is desired from black paper, and nothing else. A silhouetted witch is most effective and when armed with a paper broom adds a striking note to the Halloween feast.

The witch is cut from black crepe paper and mounted on a stiff wrapping paper or other mat paper, which is first covered with black tissue paper. The witch's broom is made of a slender round stick wound with black tissue paper, the broom part being made of fine strips of paper formed into a brush and tied around about three inches from the top with a paper cord. The handle of the broom is pasted to the back of the witch, being held in place by a strip of black paper. It is necessary to have both sides of the witch black only in case she is to be suspended and there is danger of its revolving. If she is to be placed flat against the wall any color will do for the back.

For a large Halloween party a good device is the distribution of fortunes from the witch's cauldron. Any young girl may play the part of the witch, but the effect will be heightened if a girl with black or green eyes and a rather thin face be chosen. A round faced, blue eyed witch is a little disappointing. A small girl usually takes the part better than a large one. The witch should be dressed in a long cloak, which may be made of paper, cheesecloth or silk, but should be black and should almost completely cover her, showing only her high heeled slippers. The capes are made very full, with gathered ruffs that stand up about her throat. The tall peaked witch's cap decorated with appropriate symbols in white, red or yellow, completes the costume. The witch stands under branches of autumn foliage and stirs the broth which is supposed to be bubbling in the cauldron. From time to time she bends down and pulls out of the pot of broth a fortune, which is handed to the guest whose turn it is to play the witch at that moment—tiny pumpkins, carrots, cucumbers, apples, nuts, etc.—all of which are really little boxes inside of which is concealed the message which will bring her each recipient of a fortune at her hands. The tiny objects so concealed should be of some significance considered as fortunes. To one, for instance, may go a silver ring, meaning speedy engagement; to another a traveling bag, meaning a journey, etc. Each hostess will be able to evolve for herself a variety of fortunes suitable to her guests.

dress hat which is the fetish of the moment. Many women affect a parting in the centre or at one side—corfuss being always insisted on the necessity for a break—while some wear a cluster of curls fastened beneath the brim of the hat well to the fore, hanging in front of the ear and almost on the cheek, in the coquettish style which our grandmothers delighted to adopt in early Victorian days. Nowadays we have lost the art of curling unruly locks as our forebears did before us, and the curling sticks and various appliances of the kind are no longer resorted to. Instead, the curls are trafficked for and arranged over the counter, and placed according to the latest dictates of fashion, while the business of keeping them smooth, glossy, and symmetrical, is easily achieved at home by pinning them securely to the bed or to a pin-cushion, and recurring then over the finger, touching them lightly afterwards with a spoonful of brillantine.

Y.M.C.A. LEAGUE MEETING CALLED

Representatives Will Gather at Seattle to Form International Basketball

FINE CONTEST EXPECTED

Other Athletic Associations Agitating for Local and General Competition

The representatives of the Young Men's Christian associations of the different cities of the northwest will gather at Seattle on Saturday for the purpose of formally organizing an international basketball league. It is proposed to draft a schedule including Tacoma, Seattle, Vancouver, Victoria and other centres. Besides this general business of importance will be transacted. The physical director of the local body, W. G. Findlay, proposes attending with, in all probability, one or two other representatives from this city.

Mr. Findlay is of the opinion that strong teams will be entered from the American side and from the British Columbia mainland. He is confident that the race for the pennant will be exceedingly close and interesting. Word has been received to the effect that both Seattle and Tacoma have been training their players for months and already are in splendid shape. The same information comes from Vancouver. As the Victoria Y.M.C.A. lads have been just as busy preparing, and as they will have a fast team capable of setting and maintaining a fast pace, Mr. Findlay believes that the struggle will be pregnant with interest from the outset. He appears to feel sure that the locals will not be found behind when the results are totaled at the end of the season and the awards made.

Other Leagues.

While the Y.M.C.A. basketball enthusiasts are busy getting in readiness for a busy season, the other athletic bodies of British Columbia and of the Sound seem to be dead to the necessity of making a definite move, a fact which is causing considerable dissatisfaction. As has been stated in the Colonist on several other occasions there is an agitation here having for its object the early formation of a local league. When this is done it is understood that an effort will be made to get Vancouver in line and then the associations will unite in an endeavor to form an international series apart from the Y.M.C.A. games to decide the issues. It has been suggested that the winners of the two contemplated leagues might be brought together in a number of final matches to decide the question of which is entitled to hold the title of champions of the Pacific northwest.

In view of the approaching local war, it has been suggested that the eventual home teams are practicing faithfully. By the time they are called on to enter into any competitions they all should be in the best possible shape.

Al Kaufman may be seen at the Armory A.A., in the near future. Jim Pendergast has been mentioned as his opponent.

Matty Baldwin had a pretty close call with Kid Sullivan, the Washington boxer, according to the majority of the reports.

The meeting between Matt Baldwin and Jim Driscoll, scheduled for October 28, has been postponed to November 5. Driscoll is training at Tuckahoe, N. Y.

CANADIANS TO FORE IN WORLD ATHLETES

Ed. Archibald and Bobby Kerr Are Destined to Win Fame

Two Canadian boys, one from Toronto and the other from Hamilton, have won high places for themselves in the world of athletes.

And next year may see them appearing as examples of their particular lines of sport in countries far older than Canada.

Ed. Archibald and Bobby Kerr are the men.

These two won considerable fame, both prior to and at the Olympic games in England. Incidentally they brought a few British and one world's championship back with them across the water, and gave Canada no inconsiderable amount of free advertising.

Archibald and Kerr were pressed very hard to return to England next summer to defend the titles and trophies they won last year. Naturally, the Englishmen want a chance of winning back their lost honors. But more than that, they want them to come because they are Canadians, and wonderful athletes in their respective lines.

Now Sweden wants to see the pair. And the two world-famous Canadians will likely go.

The Olympic games meant something to Sweden. They are experiencing an athletic revival there. And they want their development to be along modern lines.

Sweden was well represented at the games, but they have felt the need of a change of system and ideas. To aid them in their efforts, a team of Irish-Americans visited that country after the contests at the stadium.

Kerr and Archibald stood out at the games as the kind of stuff they wished to see produced in Sweden. Taking advantage of the likelihood of their returning to England next summer to defend their honorably won British championships, the Swedish authorities have asked the pair to favor their country with an appearance there.

Both the young men are training inquisitiously. They are pretty nearly in championship form.

Kerr is doing the 100 and 200 around the marks which won him the English and world titles. Archibald is working at everything, including pole vaulting, in the vicinity of twelve feet.

"Oh! you can never tell," said the latter when asked about the probability of his going to Europe in 1909.

As to the invitations, he replied in the same non-committal manner that such things were forthcoming all the time.

Following the example set by his fellow athletes of the ring and mat, George Hackenschmidt, who has just recovered from the effects of his recent serious operation, is about to take to the pen and write the story of his life. It will be interesting reading to know what has to say concerning the match with Gotch, where he had to pass over the world's honors. The Russian has apparently mapped out the course he intends pursuing before finally retiring and rakes the announcement that after he has fulfilled his contract, to appear at several halls in England, he will go into strict training for a match with Gotch. "I am going to have one last match with him before I finally retire," he said recently, "and I have already opened up negotiations on the subject and believe the match will come off in due course."

Some horses will stand at a hitching post without hitching. Crown shells and Crown shells will both stand without hitching, but are always ready to go the "cluck" of the fring pin.

SOVEREIGN shells (Empire smokeless powder) don't jerk the shafts out when they go. In other words, they don't strain the breech.

Wrestlers of Cities of Northwest Meet at Seattle Next Month

Tacoma, Oct. 26.—The annual wrestling championships under the auspices of the Northwest Young Men's Christian associations are scheduled for Seattle on the night of November 24. The championships last year were held in Tacoma and the tournament was such a success that the Northwest associations decided to make it a permanent annual competition. Eleven associations will be represented in Seattle.

The Tacoma Y. M. C. A. will send a number of wrestlers and a championship is very likely to be won by one of their men. For instance, a number of new pupils who are showing good class, and he is expecting to have them in it shape to defend the honors of the local association in good style. At the last tourney Tacoma did not take first in any of the events, but the matches were so close there was little to choose between the men.

Harvey Donaldson, who represented the Seattle Y. M. C. A. in the Tacoma championships in the 115-pound class, is now the undisputed champion of the Pacific coast. In the tournament at the Multnomah club, Portland, a few months ago, little Donaldson waded through the best wrestlers the coast sent forward, and he found little difficulty in annexing first prize. Donaldson may be seen in the 115-pound class at the tournament to be held next month.

The Seattle Y. M. C. A. officials intend to make this year's tournament a big thing. Valuable trophies will be offered, and it is expected that fully a hundred grapplers will compete in the tournament.

Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, Vancouver, Spokane, Victoria, Bellingham, Hoquiam, Roslyn, North Yakima and Walla Walla will no doubt be represented on the mat in the 1908 championships.

MISTAKE IN HOCKEY LEAGUE SCHEDULE

Why Vancouver Has Not Endorsed the International Series

Members of the Victoria, Garrison, Seattle and other hockey clubs which were instrumental in the drafting of an international schedule some days ago have been wondering why the Vancouver organization, which was submitted the list of fixtures for approval, have not replied to their communication. An explanation is contained in a short note published the other day in the Vancouver Province. It says: "The bright, brainy schedule-makers of the British Columbia Hockey league, comprising Victoria and Seattle delegates, arranged for the Vancouver Hockey club to play two games with Seattle at Seattle and then they wonder why the Vancouver club has not ratified the dates."

This was pointed out to an official of the local organization yesterday. He acknowledged that it was possible that such a mistake had been made but expressed some surprise that word to that effect had not been received from the Terminal City. The fact that such an error had been committed, he said, was no reason why the mainland club should ignore the wish of the other bodies identified with the proposed international league. He hoped that they would be heard from at an early date. Then it would be possible, if Vancouver is put down for two games on the other side of the line, to make the necessary alteration and to prepare for the forthcoming competition. Further he pointed out that it was Vancouver's fault that its club was not represented at the gathering at which the series was prepared and that, doubtless, had they been there the possibility of that, or any other mistake being made, would have been entirely eliminated.

LOS ANGELES HAS CINCHED PENNANT

Result of the Coast Baseball League a Foregone Conclusion

Los Angeles has already cinched the pennant in the Pacific Coast league, duplicating its performance of last year, when the Angels walked away with the coveted honors. Even though the Angels lost the nine games they still have to play, three more with San Francisco and six with Portland, they could not be headed. San Francisco might, by winning all the games yet on the schedule (ten), jump into second place, but for that to happen the Beavers would have to lose for the balance of the engagement. Oakland, of course, is a hopeless case, bound to finish last. There is little hope even that the Seals will finish above the .500 mark in the percentage, as to do that they would have to capture seven of the ten games, which is a big undertaking.

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN BASEBALL RULES

Regulations Affecting Players Coming From Minor Leagues

New York, Oct. 26.—It seems quite certain that before another world's championship baseball series rolls around the rules governing these games will be so changed that players coming from minor leagues after Sept. 1 will be eligible to play in the big series. The ban will be only upon the players transferred by one major league club to another.

The circumstance which is responsible for this respective change is that concerning infielder Bush of the Detroit team. Bush was secured by the Tigers in the last three weeks of the season and during that time has been doing such consistently good work that he is credited even by the officials of the Detroit club with being responsible for the team winning the pennant.

"We would have finished in third place if we hadn't had Bush at short," frankly acknowledged one of the Detroit club officials the other night.

Yet, according to the rules governing the world's series, Bush was ineligible to take part in the games, notwithstanding the fact that President Murphy of the Cubs expressed a willingness to waive the rules and allow Bush to patrol the beat which, it is generally conceded, now belongs to him.

The intent of that rule barring players from the world's series who had joined a team after Sept. 1, said President Hermann, "was to prevent juggling with talent. For instance, had this rule not been in force, any club in either league might purchase several stars after some other club's chances for position were gone, and so clinch the big end of the world's series coin. But I do not believe that it was the desire of the rule makers to bar minor league players under these circumstances, and I would not be surprised if the two leagues changed the rule accordingly for next year."

GANS vs. MURPHY

Ex-Champion Will Fight in New York Towards End of Month

New York, Oct. 26.—"Joe" Gans has been signed to meet "Tommy" Murphy before the new Polo Athletic club in this city the latter part of this month. If the bout is on its merits it will be a great no great surprise to see Gans dispose of "Harlem Tommy." The negro fighter when in condition has only one peer. He is "Batling" Nelson, and in a short bout even Nelson would be made to appear like a novice before the "old master" of the ring, providing, of course, that everything connected with the watch was "up and above board." The fact that Gans has again taken "Al" Hereford as his manager makes New York enthusiasts suspicious. Had Gans come on unattended and arranged matches with boys here, New York fans would have thought more of him.

Jim Buckley, who has signed up Gans and Murphy, and a referee and a promoter of boxing whose record is unblemished, declares that the contest will be a square one. "At the least sign of either boy 'laying down,'" said Buckley, "I will order them out of the ring and each member will be refunded his admittance fee."

SPORTING NOTES

The Pacific Coast league soccer match, which was to have been played here between the Nanaimo and the Victoria teams, has been postponed. It is likely that the entire series will be postponed about that date by the management in order to conform with the decision that no more Sunday matches shall be played in connection with the struggle for the Northwest pennant.

The sensation of the past few weeks in racing circles was the suspension of Frank Wootton, the popular little jockey.

who was making a great fight for the championship with Danny Maher and Higgs. The judges found him guilty of foul riding at Manchester and suspended him for five weeks. A heavy punishment at any time, this long rustication is equally grievous to the boy now coming as it does at the close of the season as it puts him out of the running and the contest for the jockey promiership resolves itself into a dark duel between the old rivals, Maher and Higgs. Wootton's suspension meant something large for him in another season, for he would have had the mount on Ventol, the winner of the Cesarewitch on Wednesday.

The suspension of J. C. Carpenter, of Cornell, which was ordered at a general committee meeting of the Amateur Athletic association in Birmingham, this week in connection with his alleged fouling of Halswell, in the 400 metre race at the Olympic games, may have important results in regard to the Anglo-American athlete. It may in fact cause a good deal of ill-feeling, which may take a long time to get over. According to the rules of the amateur athletic association, no English runner can compete against him or against any other athlete who hereafter takes part in a contest in which he is entered. Their ruling seems to be a pretty severe one and there will no doubt be lots of trouble caused therefrom, more particularly when the next Olympic games come off.

Only one player has scored over 2,000 runs during the cricket season which has recently terminated in England, and it would be indeed surprising if Tom Hayward did not accomplish this feat. His aggregate of 2,337 was just 16 behind his last year's total, and for a veteran his consistent form is really remarkable. He is fourth in the averages (45.82), being preceded by B. J. T. Bosanquet (54.05), C. B. Fry (52.63), and H. K. Foster (48.04). Fry's aggregate is just 1,000, but he was late in starting and his play has lost none of its charm. The player who has the credit of securing the highest individual score is Eylesley, who put together 243 at Leicester, but the next player with the highest aggregate next to Hayward, is his colleague Marshall, with 1,931 runs to his credit.

The feature of the bowling is the fact that four Yorkshiremen have taken 100 wickets, and as the feat is unprecedented, their respective figures demand full prominence. They are:

	O.	M.	R.	W.	Av.
Haigh	623	274	1350	103	13.39
Hirst	1115	290	2445	174	14.05
Rhodes	798	232	1839	115	15.99
Newstead	1029	284	2311	140	16.50

An American is at the head of the list, J. B. King taking 87 wickets at an average of 11.01. Blythe has secured 197 wickets, Tarrant, 169, and W. Brearley, 163.

At the London Athletic club's meeting at Stamford Bridge, the quarter mile ex-champion and British representative at the Olympic, T. H. Montague, beat E. C. Bredin's British record of 1 minute 11.2-5 seconds for 600 yards by 2-5 seconds. Montague's time is equal to the world's record of 1 minute 11 seconds by the American, T. E. Burke, at New York, on September 18, 1896, and 2 seconds faster than the British professional record of 1 minute 13 seconds, which J. Nuttall set up at Manchester in 1864, and which Bredin tied, after he had turned professional in 1897.

The 100 yard swimming championship of England decided at the Horsebaths recently resulted in a win for H. Maybourn, of Brussels, in 60 3-5 seconds; G. S. Dockrell, Dublin university, was second, in 62 2-5 seconds; Tadme-Lovlie, Weston, was third, and T. J. L. Cooke, of New South Wales, was fourth.

At the first moment when Johnson landed in England he stated he would chase the Canadian, Tommy Burns, from one end of the world to the other, until he finally made him come to terms. At last he is to have his desire and in pursuit of his quest was enthusiastically sent off from England.

Over an hour before the train was due to start the "Gentleman from Texas" arrived in the station, and was at once mobbed by an excited crowd. It took no phrenologist to surmise the majority of the crowd as past, present, and future masters of the "noble art." It was with great difficulty that the giant reached his departure platform, but his adroit side stepping eventually got him past the barrier.

Here, as the engaged label was being gummed on his reserved carriage, Johnson expressed his unalloyed conviction that he would beat Burns.

"I shall make the pace from the start to finish," said Johnson, "and I feel perfectly confident that I shall get the best of it in twelve rounds." The match, it may be well to mention, is to a finish.

"You have no fear, then of Burns' six-inch knockout?"

"No, I guess he won't hurt me much. By that I mean there will be plenty of hard hits, but he won't knock me out."

LIBBIE IS BACK FROM BERING SEA

Brought 641 Sealskins From Hunting Grounds in the Smoky Sea

TOTAL OF 15,000 SKINS

Taken By Local Fleet and the Japanese Sealers—Poachers on Trial

The sealing schooner Libbie, Capt. Balcom, reached port yesterday morning from Bering sea with 641 sealskins. She had a stormy run from English bay where she called for water on the way back from the hunting grounds. The Libbie brought no further news of the remaining sealers, three of which are still to come. The Thomas F. Bayard with 623 sealskins and 28 sea otter skins, and the Markland with 914 sealskins are on the way in, both having landed their Indian crews on the west coast a few days ago. The schooners Pescaewa, Umbra and Dora Slewder are expected shortly after these vessels.

The catch in Bering Sea this year will be larger than that taken from the northern sea for ten years. There were 28 Japanese sealing schooners which hunted close to the seal islands, two of them being caught attempting to loot the hauling grounds and seized. The Japanese sealers took about 11,000 skins and the eight schooners from Victoria have taken 4,000, as well as 33 sea otter skins, which may be worth a thousand sealskins. The market value of the sea otter varies a good deal. They have varied from $3 to $1,500. It is unusual, though, for the skins to bring less than $250 and many bring from $800 to $1,000. The value depends upon the condition and amount of silver tints in the fur.

The trial of the two Japanese sealing schooners Kinsai Maru and Sakai Maru, which were seized by the U. S. revenue cutter Perry in Bering sea, began yesterday at Valdez, where the Japanese sealers were being arraigned on the charge of illegally taking seals in United States waters. The allegation against them is that they were captured inside United States territorial waters engaged in seal hunting. Capt. Ritchie, a former Victoria sealer, who was navigating officer of the Kinsai Maru, is among those on trial at the Alaskan port.

STEAMER DISABLED BY BASKING SUNFISH

Twin Screw Steamer Fiona Met With Peculiar Accident Off the Australian Coast

News of the remarkable experience of the steamer Fiona, a twin-screw steamer which was temporarily disabled by striking a big sunfish weighing two tons was brought by the steamer Aorangi from Australia. The Fiona, which reached Sydney under one engine was about ten miles off Bird Island and 45 miles from Sydney heads when all hands were alarmed by a sudden shock on the hull of the vessel. It appeared as though the steamer had struck some solid substance or wreckage. The result was remarkable, for the port engine was brought to "all standing." The starboard engine was quickly stopped, and a boat lowered and sent to the stern to investigate. On getting under the steamer's counter, the boat's crew were astonished to find that a huge sunfish had become securely fixed in the bracket of the port propeller. One blade was completely embedded in the flesh, jamming the fish firmly against the stern post.

"It was impossible to extricate the monster," said the captain, "so we hoisted the boat on board again and proceeded on our passage with the starboard engine only working. Progress under the circumstances was slow, but Sydney heads were safely reached at 7.30 p.m. The Fiona was headed into Mosman bay, where she anchored. All hands were then set to work to clear the propeller, and, after some difficulty, with the aid of the steam winch, the sunfish was hoisted clear and swung on board. The Fiona then got under way, and proceeded on her engine." The fish was badly torn about by the propeller, and had evidently been struck while asleep.

WINNIPEG MAN CURED OF RHEUMATISM

Remarkable Case of Cure After Specialists Failed.

Winnipeg, Man.—A prominent resident of this city, who for personal reasons does not wish his name mentioned publicly, but who permits us to show his letter to interested enquirers, writes to say that he was suddenly taken with excruciating pains in the back and side, which were pronounced by his physicians as Rheumatism. Hot applications were at once resorted to, the usual medicines administered, supplemented by electrical treatment, but all to no purpose. In his desperation he took Gin Pills on his own account, and in a few hours after taking the first pill the pains commenced to subside. He continued taking them and in 48 hours he had not an ache or a pain left. Gin Pills are sold at 50c a box—6 for $2.50. Send to us your letter and we will not handle them. Sample box free if you mention this paper.

Instances are given of steamers running foul of these monsters of the deep. Some years ago the Union company's steamer Wakatipu, on a New Zealand trip, crashed into a big sunfish. She hit it bow on, and efforts were made to secure the prize. When, however, the vessel was taken off the big fish dropped clear of the bow and was lost.

The name "sunfish" is chiefly and properly applied to a marine fish (orthogoriscus), which, by its large size, grotesque appearance, and numerous peculiarities of organization, has attracted the attention equally of fishermen and naturalists. Only two species are known, the rough or short sunfish, and the much smaller and scarcer smooth or oblong sunfish. Sunfishes are truly pelagic, propagating their species in the open sea, and only occasionally approach the coast. During the stormy season they live probably at some depth, but in calm bright weather they rise and rest or play on the surface, with their dorsal fins high above the water. This habit has given rise to the popular name "sunfish," a term also sometimes applied to the basking shark, which, in like manner, enjoys the warmth of a sunny day.

THE DAYS' WORK ON A WINDJAMMER

"British ship Cleomele has left Vancouver, B.C. for Iquique." This and similar notifications occur from time to time in the shipping reports but the outsider does not realize what a weary round of unceasing work it means for the crew of a ship bound for the ports of South America, says the Vancouver Province.

In the numerous small harbors where the windjammers go for salt petre the crew of the vessel has to work cargo, both discharging and loading.

A vessel sailing from here with a million and a half feet of lumber is thus forced to remain at anchor in these South American ports for months while the work of discharging goes slowly on and the still slower process of loading salt petre is in operation.

It is little wonder, then, when a ship is loaded and is homeward bound for England that the crew show great delight and this has given rise to some unusual customs which prevail nowhere except on the west coast's salt-petre ports.

At these places there is little or no amusement for the men even if they had time to go ashore and amuse themselves. The ships are anchored under some distance. In the leading harbors there is always a big fleet of vessels and when a ship has got her cargo stowed underneath the hatches a cross is made by lashing timbers and to this red, green and white lights are fixed and the frame hoisted up one of the masts to show the fleet that she is homeward bound.

Then the crew trot aft and give three cheers for the skipper and officers always ending by singing that deep sea chantey known as "Whiskey Johnny," and which winds up with: "I thought I heard the old man say, 'hold serve us with some grog today.'"

The skipper in accordance with the time honored custom gives the men a bottle or two and then they cheer every ship in harbor. The vessels all moor in line and in rotation the crew of the homeward bounder cheer the other boats when they return the salutes. If a ship is missing or does not return the cheers a tremendous volley of groans goes up to the night and when the list has been completed all the ships ring their bells.

The wild clanging continues all night for it is a point of honor to get the last ring. One vessel thinks she has won this contest and just as they are congratulating themselves, down the harbor will come a faint "ting" from some vessel whose watchman has barely sounded the bell in order to get last ring. Then the clamor breaks out again and so it continues until the contestants are tired.

In some ports where the water is very deep the ships have to go close in shore to get anchorage and getting under weigh takes careful seamanship. Under those circumstances the other vessels send boats along to help tow the lucky homeward bounder until she gets an offing and then as they cast off the final cheers are exchanged and the homeward bound ship heads to the breeze as if relieving at getting away from one of the disagreeable phases of merchant voyaging.

ALASKAN NATIVES WERE RELIEVED

Errands of Mercy Performed By Officers of U. S. Revenue Cutter

The United States revenue cutter McCulloch, wintering in the Bering Sea, not only patrolled the sealing grounds this season, but gave relief and aid to the many starving natives in the Aleutian archipelago. The aid was required to prevent starvation and distress in many isolated communities that had been rendered destitute by the severity of last winter.

A case of unusual distress was discovered by officers of the McCulloch upon visiting Akutan island. The only settlement on the island was found to number fifty-three persons, many sick from privation and scarcity of food. An awful condition of morality existed owing to the inability to obtain a priest to solemnize marriage ceremonies. At the request of the natives Capt. Daniels provided medical aid for the suffering, and with his officers and crew contributed articles of clothing for their temporary relief. He also steamed to Unalaska and returned with a Greek priest, upon whose arrival marriages were performed. The spectacle presented officers of the McCulloch upon arrival at Akutan is described as most revolting. Due to the extreme cold and deep snow of last winter the islanders had been prevented from following their usual fishing and hunting habits. The result was that stores of fur clothing had been entirely used up and the inhabitants were barely existing. In many cases the only garment of women, several in delicate condition and badly requiring medical aid was a single pair of trousers. Many of the shoes or foot clothing being unknown in the settlement.

The usually Pacific Bering sea was greatly disturbed by strong gales that made all navigation into the North difficult during the summer. Throughout September high winds prevailed nearly constantly, making the voyage of a gale. The storm seriously interfered with the work of sealers and whalers in the Arctic and Bering sea.

On the voyage of the McCulloch from San Francisco in May, C. Charlet, a coxswain, was swept from the steamer's deck while the ship was running before a gale. Amid conditions that seemed useless to attempt a rescue prompt action by the cutter's officers brought the man aboard after he had been rendered almost unconscious by the waves.

Senior Capt. Munger stated that his vessel, covering the season's work of the Bering sea, will show that the achievements have been greater than in years past and that it is reasonable to believe that much illegal sealing has been prevented by the cutters. His report will say that the work of each of the eleven settlements is found that with the possible exception of the settlements of Atka, at the extreme western end of the Aleutian group, and at Cherskofsky, the health of the natives is nearly constant and the work of the corps of surgeons that accompanied the cutters north has been an important feature of the fleet's work.

LARGEST FLEET IN MERCHANT MARINE

Hamburg-American Line Has Biggest Tonnage Operated Under the Same House Flag

While Great Britain has the chief distinction of the maritime world, the largest single fleet carries the Red, White and Black, and its house flag is the Hamburg-American line, which is the world's work in a current issue. Its sixty-eight distinct services carry the world's commerce into and out of nearly every important port of all the continents. If the entire fleet were assembled in one harbor it would present an imposing array of the ocean steamers, eight others under construction and 215 river steamers and harbor craft—a total of 333 vessels, with a gross tonnage of nearly a million. If this fleet were welded into one mammoth steamer it would be nearly five miles long, more than a mile wide and about a half mile deep. It would have a cargo yield of 2,000,000 acres; it could take the wheat crop of 3,000,000 acres, and half a billion feet of lumber would not fill it. This is the commercial hyphen that has connected Hamburg and America for nearly a century.

The first Hamburg-American ship arrived in New York harbor in 1847, when the rate of postage to Europe was 30 cents a half ounce, when Castle Garden was an amusement resort, when Broad and Beaver streets were the theatre of the city's low life, when Broadway, between Canal street and the Astor house, was the "Great White Way." That first vessel was the Deutschland, a sailing ship of 717 tons. The Deutschland of today registers 16,602 tons, and is nearly 3,000 tons smaller than the Kaiserin Augusta of Victoria. This steamship line, which is as familiar in Montevideo, Shanghai and Sierra Leone as in Baltimore and Puget Sound, has made its New York home on historic soil. A tablet erected on its new offices says that it "marks the site of the first habitation of white men on the island of Manhattan." There it was that Adrian Block, commander of the Tiger, built four huts in 1913 after his ship was burned. This is the first vessel made by Europeans in this country—the Restless, launched in 1914.

But the home and the history of the Hamburg-American line are of far less importance than the opportunities which this one unit of transportation offers to American shippers. Its 150 liners and cargo boats may be of more importance than an equal number of other vessels, but their assembling under one house flag makes them more convenient. This fleet touches regularly at the ports of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Norfolk, Newport News, Galveston, San Francisco and Puget Sound. It brings every one of these widely distributed American ports into direct communication with nearly all the world. If there were other boats on the seas, an American exporter would find a list of about 500 ports where his goods might be landed. He might not only ship to every seaport that he could name, but he could get through bills of lading to scores of such unheard-of ports as Pulo Wel, Siam, India, East India, Alhaz, Persia, Nossi Be, East Africa; Half Jack, West Africa; Bedsted, Denmark; Xpilla, Finland, and Oernskoldsvik, Sweden.

CONTRACTS FOR MANY NEW VESSELS MADE

About 120,000 Tons Figure in Statement of Shipbuilding at the Clyde Yards

A feature of the shipbuilding trade during September was the large number of contracts placed, while there seemed little reason, judging by the condition of shipping, why owners should order new tonnage. Many vessels are laid up at different ports in the United Kingdom, and these would, it might be assumed, have found employment before they were ordered. Some owners, however, are evidently of the opinion that the trade improvement which they anticipate will be sufficient to absorb not only the vessels at present idle, but also a fair number of new steamers, which, if doubtless consider the when the improvement does come they will reap most benefit if they have ships of the newest and most up-to-date character.

Others again are of the opinion that the present is the best time for building, as prices are at a low level, and that several of the new tonnage and Glasgow yards, which have been very slack for months past, are now becoming quite busy. For the upper reaches, however, very few orders have yet been obtained, and all the large yards about Dumbarton are still very badly off for new work. Whether the "revival" is or is not a genuine trade improvement cannot yet be said with any degree of confidence, but meantime the contracts are very welcome. The new tonnage, where, although they have in most cases been ordered at low prices, they will do something to lessen the volume of unemployment in the lower district.

Many Contracts Signed

The contracts reported for Russell & Co., Port Glasgow, probably make a record for any firm within a similar period of time. The company is to build a steamer of 3,500 tons deadweight for Hope & Sloan, Glasgow; a large steamer for English owners; a cargo steamer of 7,500 tons deadweight for Marshall and W. C. Double, Glasgow; two small steamers of light draught for foreign owners; a steamer of 1,000 tons deadweight for M. Langlands & Sons, Glasgow; a steamer of 8,000 tons for Lang & Fulton, Glasgow; and a large cargo steamer of 100 feet in length, for foreign owners. Scott's Shipbuilding & Engineering company, Greenock, are to build two steamers of 7,500 tons deadweight, and Charles Connell & Co., Scotstoun, three Camosun steamers, all to the order of James Gardiner & Co., Port Glasgow. Scott's company, another steamer of 7,500 tons for other owners; the Greenock & Grangemouth Dockyard company, five steamers of fair size for the Russian volunteer fleet, and a tug of 100 feet in length for Buenos Ayres owners; a tug of 100 feet for Glasgow, a steamer of 7,500 tons carrying capacity for H. Hogarth & Sons, Glasgow; Robert Duncan & Co., Port Glasgow, a large cargo-carrying steamer.

INTERESTING CRUISE IN SIBERIAN WATERS

Trading Schooner Back From Voyage to Villages Along the Coast of Northern Asia

After a cruise in Siberian waters the trading auxiliary schooner P. J. Abler has returned to Puget Sound, and her master, Capt. Born gives an interesting account of her voyage. He said: "The schooner actually sailed 1,000 miles to reach Cape Serge, winding in and out along the Siberian coast and touching at all the trading posts. We found that the Russians have started a boycott on American traders and their goods because they fear that Americans will usurp their trade in the business. While we were at St. Nicholas bay a Russian man—of-war, the Shilka, forced all the miners to turn over the last cleanup of gold, amounting to over $10,000, claiming that the Russian government alone had control of the mining properties there. The miners, many of them Americans who have been there for three years, made the officers give them receipts for their gold, but they refused to let the miners keep it. It would have taken the gold to St. Nicholas bay over the matter and the miners have quit work until they can ascertain where they stand. From Cape Serge we came back to Nome and opened a trading store disposing of the remainder of our cargo. We brought back a lot of nice furs, which will be sold in the local market. On the way back we encountered much ice before reaching Nome and were two days making fifteen miles through the ice fields. The little vessel Trader, built at Ballard and wrecked during the late fall at Indian Point, and we picked up the two men who were run down by the ice. It is hoped to save the vessel which is aground. The schooner Ivy was wrecked at Point Barrow, but the crew and cargo were saved, and the schooner Seven Sisters was wrecked 105 miles above Nome. Her entire cargo was lost, but the men were saved. While we were at Adirday three Russians borrowed our whale boat to row around to a station, about fifteen miles, and nothing was heard of them. A strong sea was running around the point at the time and the boat was swept away from land and crushed. Only one ear was found of the outfit.

"The Siberian coast is rapidly becoming a good trading territory and many Germans are now making the ports along it."

ASSOCIATED BOARDS OF TRADE MEET

Okanagan Business Men Take Action to Organize For Business Purposes

Armstrong, B.C., Oct. 26.—For several months a movement has been on foot having for its object the formation of an associated board of trade which will embrace the various organizations of this nature in all parts of the Okanagan. After a good deal of correspondence between Kelowna, Penticton and Armstrong it was finally determined to hold a meeting in this city, and a convention for this purpose was held in the Oddfellows' hall.

Penticton did not send delegates, but Kelowna and Armstrong were represented by three members each of boards of these towns, and the enthusiasm with which the scheme was taken up would seem to indicate that the new association will be one of full vitality and usefulness.

The delegates present were: Vernon—G. Henderson, C. C. McRae and P. Dickson; Kelowna—R. B. Kerr, M. Heron and T. G. Speer; Armstrong—C. T. Daykin, A. E. Sage and Dr. Vankleek.

Before meeting to discuss business the delegates and a number of members of the Vernon board had lunch together at the Kalamalka hotel. President Vallance presided and there were present in addition to the delegates named above, Messrs. Price Ellison, W. R. Megaw, S. C. Smith, H. F. Wilmet, R. J. Mutrie, G. A. Hankey, J. A. McKelvie, J. M. Barnett and Mayor Timmins.

After justice had been done to an excellent luncheon, President Vallance in a brief speech welcomed the visitors to the city and expressed his gratification that this movement had at last taken definite shape under such excellent auspices. He called upon Messrs. Price Ellison, G. A. Henderson and Mayor Timmins to make addresses on the subject. These three gentlemen spoke briefly, and all concurred in expressing pleasure at the idea that the association was now to become an accomplished fact. Mr. Ellison stated his conviction that the board and members of both political parties should unite in working for increased protection for fruit, which was now being crowded out of the markets of the northwest by American competitors from Oregon and Washington. Mr. Henderson dwelt upon the necessity of organizing to procure markets; and Mayor Timmins added an official word of welcome to the delegates.

Messrs. Kerr, of Kelowna, and Daykin, of Armstrong, responded to a toast to the health of the delegates proposed by President Vallance, and the party then broke up to meet again at 5 o'clock in the Oddfellows' hall.

Upon assembling in the hall the delegates at once got down to business with Mr. Vallance in the chair, and it was unanimously decided to form an organization to be known as the Associated Boards of Trade of the Okanagan.

Mr. G. A. Henderson, district manager of the Bank of Montreal here, was a special invited president of the new organization, and took the chair amidst warm applause.

It was decided that the presidents of the local boards at Armstrong, Vernon, Kelowna and Penticton be vice-presidents of the Associated board; and Mr. P. Dickson, of this city, was elected secretary-treasurer. Mr. Kerr, of Kelowna, and Mr. Sage, of Armstrong, each having declined to accept nomination for this office.

The meeting then proceeded to discuss a constitution and bylaws, and those of the Kootenay associated board were adopted clause by clause with such necessary alterations and amendments as local conditions make necessary.

At the evening session it was decided to bring all possible pressure to bear upon the C.P.R. in order to have the name of Sicamous station changed to Okanagan Junction.

A resolution was passed drawing the attention of the Dominion government to the necessity of establishing a dry belt experimental farm in the Okanagan.

It was resolved by motion to urge the provincial minister of education to establish in the Okanagan the Agricultural college contemplated in connection with the University of British Columbia.

Before adjourning it was decided to hold the next annual meeting at Kelowna.

Gold Brick From Sheep Creek.

Nelson, B.C., Oct. 26.—A $7,000 gold brick and news of a new strike of rich, free milling gold ore have reached Nelson from Sheep Creek camp. Manager H. Lewiston, of the Queen mine, reached here yesterday with the news of the discovery of a new parallel vein on the neighboring Nuggett, which is located on the other side of the valley.

The new vein on the Nuggett runs from $20 to $400 per ton in gold and it is only a month since the twin vein now being worked on the same claim was struck and found to carry gold values of over $200 per ton. Both the Queen and the Nuggett carry base ore as well as free milling, the Queen shipping concentrates to the Northport smelter and the Nuggett to that at Trail. By the installation of new stamps the Queen mine has increased its capacity from 185 to 400 tons per week, which means the employment of many more men.

Development work will proceed at once on the new vein discovered on the Nuggett, and the conditions in the two mines are such as in many mining countries would lead to a rush of prospectors into the district.

OKANAGAN INFANTRY

Troop Inspected By Col. Holmes, D.O.C.—Will Recommend a Drill Hall

Armstrong, B. C., Oct. 26.—Col. Holmes, D.O.C., of Victoria, has held an inspection of the local squadron of Okanagan Mounted rifles. The men made a splendid showing, not only in attendance but also in their drill and general efficiency. Out of 63 men and five officers, the total strength of the corps, there were present on Wednesday 62 men and four officers. The interest in the drill since the formation of the squadron has also been very great, the average attendance for 32 drills has been 40.

In view of the close attention which both officers and men have been giving their work, and also for the reason that their present drilling quarters will not be available much longer, the announcement by Col. Holmes that an application for a drill hall and armory would at once be made to the minister of militia, will be welcome tidings to the officers and men of the O.M.R. Col. Holmes was in favor of making this point the headquarters of the regiment, and if this is done the drill hall will also have in addition to the armory, an officer's mess, sergeant's mess, dressing room for the men, quartermaster's store, and a basement shooting gallery. The building will not be less than 48x120, and the estimated cost will not be less than $10,000.

At the next meeting of the council an application will be made for a free site, a condition which the department exacts before a drill hall will be allowed at any place.

The need for a drill hall is very great. In fact, it is imperative if the squadron is to be held together, and when the splendid showing the men have made, in attendance and drill, is taken into consideration, no one will deny but that they deserve it.

COLUMBIA TRAFFIC BRIDGE

Work Will Commence Soon on This Important Undertaking

Revelstoke, B.C., Oct. 26.—P. C. Gamble, chief provincial engineer, states that the plans for the new government traffic bridge across the Columbia river at this point were well in hand and would be completed almost at once, when tenders would be called for the work. He said that there would be ample time to complete the bridge reasonably early next year. Mr. Gamble also said that the soundings and surveys for the piers of the structure were all ready and the location had been decided some little time ago which would be a little above the present C.P.R. bridge. He corroborated Mr. Fulton's statement that the bridge when completed would be a credit to the government. In connection with the new bridge over the Illecillewaet River, too, plans were already prepared and tenders would be called shortly.

Revelstoke, B.C., Oct. 26.—A fire which destroyed $20,000 worth of lumber broke out at the Wattsburg yards of the Watt Lumber company near Cranbrook. The fire started in a shed used for storing the high-grade material, and in a few minutes the entire contents were destroyed. The nearby piles of lumber and the adjoining buildings also caught and for a while threatened to involve the entire yard and mill. Fortunately the wind was southerly and the mill crew some 50 in all, succeeded in removing some of the piles of lumber, making a firebreak that prevented the spread of flames.

In this work several of the men were badly scorched. This alone prevented the destruction of the extensive premises and a valuable stock of cut lumber. In spite of all that could be done, with the assistance of the men from the East Kootenay Lumber company, the ties on the Canadian Pacific railroad, with the telegraph and telephone poles, were set on fire, and the Soo-Spokane train and a freight held up two hours.

The fire was thought to have originated from a spark from a freight train, or it may have been caused by some tramp camping under the sheds. This is the second fire that has occurred at Wattsburg, and only a plentiful supply of water and the aid of the steam pump prevented serious loss.

Governor Pennypacker Only Says Receipt of Standard Oil Letters Was Improbable

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Considering that I recommend in my inaugural address a tax on coke and coal taken out of this state in order to pay the expenses of the public schools, you can see that it is extremely improbable that I received any communications from the Standard Oil company or from John D. Archbold relative to the appointment of John J. Henderson, of Meadville, Penna., as a judge of the superior court of this state referred to in letters read by William R. Hearst in Brooklyn on Saturday night.

This was the reply to former Governor Samuel W. Pennypacker, when asked today if Judge Henderson was appointed by him through the intervention of Mr. Archbold or Standard Oil interests.

CASTRO IS FIRM

Refuses to Revoke Decree Prohibiting Transshipment of Goods at Curacao

Caracas, Venezuela, Oct. 20. (Tuesday).—Via Willemstad, Curacao, Oct. 26.—President Castro in his answer to the second Netherlands note, has declined to revoke his decree of May 14, prohibiting the transshipment of goods for Venezuelan ports at Curacao, which has been so obnoxious to the people of that island.

This answer was made Sept. 12. The president expressed surprise that the Netherlands government should ask for the revocation of his decree after acknowledging Venezuela's right to issue it. Continuing, he asks the Netherlands to send a confidential agent to Caracas to arrange the terms of an amicable settlement of the difficulties between the two governments.

The chief of the artillery branch of the Venezuelan army has completed the preparations for the defense of La Guaira, in anticipation of a naval demonstration by Holland before that port in November. Shells have been distributed to all the modern guns installed in the fort on the mountain-side above.

President Castro's health is still delicate and causes anxiety to his friends.

Portland, Maine, Child III, Weak and Emaciated, Restored to Health by Vinol

"Our little daughter, six years of age, after a severe attack of the measles, which developed into pneumonia, was left pitifully thin, weak and emaciated. She had no appetite, and her stomach was so weak it could not retain food. She lay in this condition for weeks, and nothing the doctor prescribed did a bit of good, and we were beginning to think she would never recover.

"At this time we commenced to give her Vinol and the effect was marvelous. The doctor was amazed at her progress, and when we told him we were giving her Vinol, he replied, 'It is a fine remedy, keep it up.' We did so, and she recovered her health and strength months before the doctor thought she could." J. W. Flagg, Portland, Me.

Vinol cures conditions like this because in a natural manner it increases the appetite, tones up the digestive organs, makes rich, red blood, and strengthens every organ in the body.

STRUCK GOOD ORE

Italian Miners Holding Lease on Old Reco Mine in Slokan Find a Bonanza

Nelson, Oct. 26.—It has been said by a few that the Sandom silver-lead camp, one of the first exploited in the Kootenay a couple of decades ago, is now a "has been." Such, however, is the recent revival in mining and such the possibilities which exist all over the Kootenay in old and new districts alike that a recent lease in Sandom has proved a fortune for a few lucky Italians.

The Reco mine was recently leased by its owners, Fred Kelly and John Harris of Spokane, to some Italians. They started work this month and last week made a strike in one of the old workings of a rich vein of silver-lead ore. Within a week there is said to be nearly $20,000 worth of ore on sight. The original owners are declared to have offered the lucky Italians $50,000 for their lease, but the men from sunny Italy have held on to their bond and declare they will make much more money than the amount which was offered them.

Sask-alta

Range

How a Sask-alta thermometer earns its money.

By indicating when oven is ready for baking. By cutting out the "peeping" into oven. By showing on its face what is going on in the oven. By saving "door-opening" heat. By substituting certainty for chance in baking results.

"Sask-alta" range thermometer was tested for six months before one range was sold. "Sask-alta" thermometer is to the housewife what the compass is to the ship captain.

FOR SALE BY CLARKE & PEARSON, VICTORIA

The dispatch published in the Free Press during the week that Alfred Schrubbs, the English champion runner, has been engaged as coach to the Harvard cross country runners, will be welcome news to his many friends in the west. Alfred Schrubbs created a favorable impression when in Winnipeg last year, and there are few who will deny that he is the greatest runner who ever put on a shoe. His records show it, and the many attempts which have been made in all countries to lower them have failed. Since Schrubbs turned professional he has been out after the money, and he seems to have been picking it up pretty well. He challenged Hayes to run 25 miles for $2,500 a side, but the much-hooped champion has declined. He is a good judge, too, for the Marathon runner's fame was cheaply and luckily earned.

BANDITS MAKE RAID ON A QUEBEC BANK

Vault Dynamited and Manager Slightly Wounded—Sum of $4,500 Stolen

Quebec, Oct. 26.—The branch of the Banque Provinciale at St. Raphael, Beloeil, Quebec county, was visited and dynamited by burglars early on Saturday morning, and all the contents of the vault taken away.

It was a little after midnight when Mr. Fliset, the local manager, was awakened by an explosion. He immediately jumped out of his bed. As he stepped into the hall, he was met by several revolver shots. A ball entering the palm of his right hand and making its exit near the wrist, inflicting a painful wound. Mr. Fliset dropped his revolver and yelled for help.

The burglars, numbering eight, fled, well covered with their revolvers. A citizen of St. Raphael, hearing the explosion and the shots, came out of his house armed with a rifle. As it was very dark his wife put a lantern in the window, and instantly the man was surrounded by the burglars, each holding a revolver. He had to drop his rifle.

The burglars managed to get out of the village without further interference. The description given of them is that they were well dressed. They took all the money in the vault, amounting to about $4,500. A posse was immediately organized to search for them, and it is said that their tracks were found. A squad of the provincial police left to lead the posse. Mr. Fliset's wound is not dangerous, though very painful.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

(Furnished by F. W. Stevenson & Co.)
New York, Oct. 26.—Trading on the stock market was dull and uninteresting today but prices were firm and slightly higher in most cases than Saturday's close. A feeling of hesitancy was noted in the financial circles and the disposition to trade either way has not been prolonged. A favorable feature has been the comparatively small amount of liquidation during the dull periods. The better tone of the London market and the absence of unfavorable reports over Sunday morning have helped to keep prices steady. Higher prices and considerable activity in the early session, but trading later became dull. The near approach of the election will perhaps tend to narrow the trading and the effect of the speeches by candidates in New York will perhaps influence the list.

RAILWAY EARNINGS

American Roads Show Small Decrease For Month of September

All railroads in the United States reporting for the four weeks of September show total gross earnings of $31,749,346, a decrease of 7.0 per cent. compared with the corresponding period of last year. The roads reporting are mostly in the south and southwest, where there has been a large tonnage in grain and cotton, and this has to some extent helped to swell earnings on the roads included. The same roads for a like period in August and July reported a decrease of 14 per cent. and 17 per cent. respectively.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

(Furnished by F. W. Stevenson & Co.)
Chicago, Oct. 26.—Wheat—Not much of the market were disappointed in the wheat market today. The early news from Argentina, both by the official Liverpool cables and direct private cables indicated additional frost damage to the growing crop of that country Saturday. Wheat was not advanced on this sort of news for the simple reason that Antwerp, Berlin and India had not responded, but came unchanged or lower. On the other hand, the bears had a very favorable visible statement of over three million and the total visible enlarged to nearly 3,400,000 over last year. Even with this help, and the selling out of large local lots, the market has gone down very slowly and very stubbornly and we take this as an indication that there is likely to be a very strong rally in the future any leading developments on the styling.

cents decline. This is the feature which will make corn raisers dissatisfied with the bids which go out and when the country stops selling, he ready to take hold of the market. A bull market. Oats—Oats had no change for the day. Shipping sales were 125,000 bushels. Provisions—Prices had a sustained advance of 30 cents over Saturday at the close. Packers were offering no opposition to the advance in prices except for a few items. There seemed to be a little selling pressure for the day. The largest interests in the trade appear willing to have prices remain at about this level for a time, until the rule of hog is over but investors who take product on the weak spots are likely to be in line for a good advance in the near future.

Treatment of Carpets

Under the old system of Carpet Cleaning many people rather hesitated about submitting their good carpets to the cleaner, which certainly did use them harshly. Not so with the Vacuum Cleaner, it not only cleans the carpet but raises the pile and makes it look like new. It cleans thoroughly not only the carpet but the paper and floor underneath, and without removing the carpet or upsetting the house, and the charges are moderate indeed. We would be glad to estimate.
